The Concertmen

Tuesday Evening

Concert Association Gives Last Program

The Sedalia Community Concert Association will present The Concertmen and Edmond Karlrud in the final concert of the 1957-58 season Tuesday evening, April 16, 8:15 p.m. at Smith-Cotton auditorium.

The popular male vocal ensemble, The Concertmen, was organized by Edmond Karlrud in the latter part of 1954. Since then, their triumphant tours, averaging over 70 engagements from coast-to-coast in this country and throughout Canada, have won smash-hit successes. Smoothness and precision, perfect vocal blend, and robust, vigorous performance are the hallmarks of the ensemble.

The program The Concertmen and Edmond Karlrud will present Tuesday evening is designed to please all musical tastes and to provide the listener with a great deal of sheer entertainment as well as musical interest. The program features art songs, operatic arias, operetta selections, folk songs, and spiritual. The Concertmen will be heard by themselves and with Mr. Karlrud. In addition, several different soloists from the group will be featured during the course of the program, indicating the great variety and scope of the entire production.

Edmond Karlrud is a native of Montana, where he received his first musical training in the Scobey public schools. In addition to his musical pursuits he was a letterman in various school sports; he set a basketball scoring record for the state during his senior year. Graduating from high school when he was 16, he entered the University of Minnesota where he appeared in theatre productions on the campus and was soloist with the University Chorus and Concert Band while studying pre-law and playing on the varsity basketball team.

Offered a scholarship to New York's famous Juilliard School, Karlrud transferred there to sing three seasons in the Juilliard Opera Theatre and win a Bachelor of Science in Music degree. During his stay at Juilliard he organized the Men of Song quartet, and began to perform with them while still in school. They appeared on the Sedalia Community Concert series in 1954.

As a soloist, Karlrud has appeared in many oratorios, con-

Way Now Clear For Bid Approval On New Highway

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Three suits challenging the location of a new interstate highway south of Boonville were dismissed today by Cole County Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair.

The action cleared the way for the State Highway Commission to approve low bids for the project at its meeting later today in St. Louis.

Judge Blair wrote no opinion in entering the three orders of dismissal in the test cases brought by Velma Ebersole, the city of Boonville and others.

They argued the hearings conducted last summer by the Highway Commission and its chief counsel, Robert L. Hyder, did not meet the requirements of state and federal law. They asked the court to stop further proceedings and declare the commission's actions invalid in three related suits.

The state countered that the federal district engineer had attended some of the hearings and had found them to be satisfactory. Since he was the final approving authority, the state contended all requirements of the law had been met.

Judge Blair's three dismissal order had the effect of upholding that view.

Rocket Motor Fools Experts By Long Trip

No More Sightings Have Been Reported Since Late Sunday

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Scientists said today Sputnik II, history's first passenger-carrying satellite, apparently fell apart over the West Indies last night.

They said a single sighting from Denver, Colo., last night indicated the heavy rocket motor of the Soviet man-made moon might have made one more lap around the world after the rest of Sputnik had fallen. The Denver sighting was an hour and a half after the supposed crack-up over the West Indies.

Dr. John White of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said today's best evidence that the Soviet moon is down is the total lack of further sightings after Denver's at 10:12 p.m. EST.

The rocket would have made another pass down the West Coast 88 minutes later if it had been still aloft. Numerous moonwatch teams throughout the West and Stanford University's radar telescope at Palo Alto, Calif., failed to pick up this passage.

Sputnik II fooled the professors' prediction of the hour of its death by gliding around the world a half dozen times longer than expected last night.

If the sections that seemingly fell apart over the West Indies continued far enough—and were not consumed by heat from air friction—they might have found their final resting place in the jungles of Brazil.

A single sighting from Denver, Colo., indicated the heavy rocket motor may have completed one more orbit than the lighter fuel tanks and instrument section.

The dog rocket was seen glowing like a hot poker from air friction over New England at 8:47 p.m., the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said.

Eight minutes later it was reported in flames over the West Indies. If it continued a minute more, it would have been lost in Brazilian jungles.

Moonwatch teams in Milford, Conn., Millbrook, N.Y., and Bryn Athyn, Pa., reported sighting the satellite last night. The Millbrook and Bryn Athyn teams said it appeared to be glowing with a luminous tail of sparks.

The Smithsonian said the satellite would normally have been invisible in the shadow of the earth on its passage over the Northeast.

The sole report that indicated the heavy motor of the rocket may have continued onward another lap was from Kenneth Steinmetz of the Denver Moonwatch team. Observing with his family, he reported sighting an object as bright as the North Star at 10:12 p.m. Steinmetz said the object was glowing orange-red and was observed for half a minute as it orbited towards the southeast.

Numerous observers in the West Indies said they saw a flaming object overhead about 8:55 p.m.

The master of the Dutch tanker Mitra radioed from a position south of the Virgin Islands that a fiery ball was seen hurtling down across the sky at that time. The Navy ballistic range at Antigua also said the flaming rocket was seen.

Proposes Tax Cut, Spending

Former President Truman Appears Before Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harry S. Truman today proposed a five-billion-dollar tax cut for low and middle income taxpayers and urged a large increase in government spending.

The former president, who described himself as a retired Missouri farmer, delivered a wide-ranging discourse on the current economic situation to the House Banking and Currency Committee.

He larded his views with peppery jabs at the Eisenhower administration. The country, Truman said, would not be in the shape it is if the administration had taken quicker action.

He said he saw no need for periodic economic downturns and that both plans and policies of the government should be directed toward constantly expanding the economy.

"We might not be altogether successful in preventing economic downturns," Truman said, "but at least we can make that our goal and not try to brush recessions aside by pretending that they are a good thing."

The committee hearings marked the return of Congress from a 10-day Easter holiday for the last half of a session which must cope with the problems of unemployment and a business slump.

Truman contended the tax structure should be changed both to provide more purchasing power after taxes and to take special privilege benefits out of the tax laws.

His proposed five-billion-dollar tax cut for middle and low income families, Truman said, is the quickest way to put more spending power into the hands of the average American home.

Truman said such tax relief was also the surest and safest way toward a balanced federal budget because it would help restore maximum employment and help lift total national production.

At New Car Dealers

'Buying' Visitors May Have Over-Park Tickets Validated

Out-of-town visitors receiving police tickets for over-parking in Sedalia may turn in the ticket to the new car dealer of their choice and have the ticket validated, according to Mike O'Connor, chairman of Sedalia's "You Auto Buy Now" campaign.

The new move to attract out-of-town visitors to the city's gigantic 11-day sale was made to allow customers time to take a good look at the special bargains offered,

Blue Shield Coverage Hot Medical Topic

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Conflicting plans for revision of Blue Shield coverage were a hot issue today at the 100th annual convention of the Missouri State Medical Assn.

The meeting opened yesterday with a plea by Dr. W.F. Francka of Hannibal, the association's incoming president, for the doctors to use restraint in arguing policy questions.

"There is no room for personalities, no room for narrow differences between city and country, between specialist and general practitioner, no room for questioning of motives, no room for anything except honest, full and fair discussion of the merits of the choices before us," Dr. Francka said.

The St. Louis Medical Society is pushing for an increase in Blue Shield coverage for major medical and surgical costs for the so-called catastrophic illnesses or accidents.

Dr. Walter S. Sewell of Springfield, Mo., the retiring president who also is president of Blue Shield, said "we shall continue to do everything we can to make Blue Shield a better and stronger plan in the service of the public and of the medical profession."

Spirited discussion developed among the doctors as to what position the association should take on a federal-state program to provide medical care funds for persons on public assistance rolls.

Three separate proposals were discussed in committee. One urged the association to condemn the plan known as the Vendor program and to resist its adoption in Missouri.

Another called for a neutral position by the doctors. The proponents of a neutral stand argued this would give the association some voice in guiding the program if it should be approved by the state Legislature.

A third resolution urged outright support of the program. Congress already has approved the Vendor program, which permits states to participate on a 50-50 cost basis.

Explosion Wrecks Concordia Station

CONCORDIA, Mo. (AP)—An explosion yesterday wrecked a Concordia service station and injured two attendants.

Owner Arnold Bodenstab estimated damage at $15,000 to $20,000. He said the blast apparently was in the basement. There was no fire.

Lynn Kennedy, about 35, and Emil J. Rhith, 17, sustained cuts and scratches.

take demonstration rides and examine special features without having to worry about parking problems. This special feature will be continued until the "You Auto Buy Now" campaign ends April 21.

Nine new car dealers, who banded together to spark the nationwide "Buy Now" campaign, have sold well over 100 new or used cars and trucks since the campaign got under way Friday morning.

At a meeting of dealers and salesmen at the Pacific Cafe Monday morning, a rough estimate placed the total sales figure well over $250,000 for the first two days.

The dealers are offering 406 new cars, 98 new trucks and 982 used cars at special discounts to prompt purchasers to "Buy Now" and combat the current economic recession. Buying now, and keeping money moving, will create more jobs and re-open closed down manufacturing plants, the dealers maintain.

This recession-fighting campaign recommended by President Eisenhower has mushroomed all over the nation during the past few weeks. Sedalia's "You Auto Buy Now" committee has received telegrams of commendation from dozens of economists, congressmen, state officials and industrialists since the campaign was announced.

Representative Morgan M. Moulder of the 11th Congressional District joined in with others in urging along the "You Auto Buy Now" campaign during a visit to Sedalia during the weekend. He said:

"I join with the leaders of our nation and state in the support of the campaign, 'You Auto Buy Now.' I feel that if you can afford and intend to buy, now is the time to buy and assist in combatting a recession and an increase in unemployment."

United States Sen. Stuart Symington, in a phone conversation from Washington Monday morning, praised the Sedalia automobile dealers for their efforts in keeping money moving. He stated:

"Congratulations to the automobile dealers of Sedalia, and best wishes on your 'You Auto Buy Now' campaign. The automobile industry is one of our most important businesses. In America today we have all the ingredients for full prosperity. Your campaign will stress the value of buying now, and thereby aid in combatting the recession."

The local campaign has the backing of the retail merchants division of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, and dozens of merchants have joined in the campaign.

The campaign was met with such enthusiasm by businessmen and individuals that the committee ran out of "You Auto Buy Now In Sedalia" lapel and car bumper stickers on opening day. Retail merchants all along Ohio have displayed the bumper-type stickers on their windows, and sales personnel are wearing the lapel stickers. O'Connor said more material had been ordered and would be on hand early this week.

Boy Severely Hurt As His Car Crashes

It Rolls Several Times, Then Jumps Creek, Misses Pole

Miss Patricia Lynn Streeter, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery A. Streeter, Route 4, Sedalia, was instantly killed about 2 p.m. Sunday in a one-car accident a short distance from her home.

The accident occurred on County Highway B, about three miles southwest of Sedalia, and less than a quarter of a mile from the Streeter family residence.

Dale Phillip McCune, 19, owner of the 1955 DeSoto hardtop sedan which crashed, was severely injured in the accident. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William McCune, Route 1, Sedalia.

McCune suffered multiple cuts about his face, chest, arms, and scalp, and scrapes on the body. He also appeared suffering a back and hip injury, but his condition was such that X-ray pictures could not be taken Sunday afternoon.

He was taken to Bothwell Hospital in the Ewing ambulance, where Dr. A. L. Walter rendered emergency treatment.

Miss Streeter, who was thrown from the car into a creek with about four inches of water in it, suffered a multiple fracture of the skull, a broken right shoulder, and scrapes on the left side of her face and forehead. It appeared she struck her forehead just above the right eye.

Dr. J. M. Rodeman, acting coroner, went to the scene and viewed the body. He said an inquest was not necessary.

The time of the accident was placed at about 2 o'clock from reports by drivers of cars which had passed the scene. Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors, accompanied by Mrs. Neighbors, were driving down the road and noticed the man standing up and waving. Chief Neighbors said he saw the car over the fence, but figured the accident must have occurred during the night and the people were looking at it. He reported he and Mrs. Neighbors did not see Miss Streeter's body, and thought that McCune was just waving. This time was placed at about 1:59 p.m.

At least three other cars passed the scene and did not stop.

H. D. Wallington P.O. Box 33, Sedalia, and Mrs. Irene Morris, who were out driving, passed and noticed the man wave and then saw the girl in the creek off the road and noted the car. They, too, indicated that at first they nearly passed it by until they saw the car was wrecked and the girl lying in the creek.

They drove first to the Streeter home, unaware the girl lived there, but were unable to get anyone to answer the door and then drove to the next farm home, that of Junior Brownfield, and from there called the Sedalia police and notified them of the wreck and had an ambulance called.

Wallington, Mrs. Morris and Brownfield then went back to the scene of the accident, to await the arrival of the ambulance and Patrol.

Sgt. E. W. Van Winkle of the State Highway Patrol investigated the accident. He found marks on the small culvert bridge to the north where skid marks started about five feet north of the south end of the culvert. From this point down the blacktop highway in an arched skid mark, the tracks traveled about 282 feet, before going off the pavement and in angle across the shoulder, down the embankment and a distance from the pavement to the fence of approximately 117 feet. The car apparently jumped the wire fence and began rolling, going an additional distance of about 102 feet before coming to a stop on all four wheels. The car jumped the branch and landed about ten feet south of it. The car missed a telephone pole at the fence line by a few inches as it went over the fence.

McCune was thrown out of the car as it hurdled the fence and then Miss Streeter was thrown out as the car apparently sailed through the air over the branch.

McCune has been residing in Kansas City at 4343 Highland and is employed in Kansas City by the Canteen. His father is manager of the Farm Bureau Service Store at 1200 South Ohio.

Miss Streeter was born Feb. 24, 1943, at Mt. Vernon, Mo., the daughter of Avery A. and Freda Hombree Streeter. The family came to Pettis County several years ago.

She attended the Lamine school

Princess Soraya Off Today for US Visit

GENOA, Italy (AP)—Princess Soraya left for the United States aboard the liner Constitution today, just one month after the Shah of Iran divorced her for failing to bear an heir to the throne.

In contrast to the clamoring crowd that nearly mobbed the attractive princess when she arrived by train from Geneva yesterday, only a handful braved a drizzling rain to see her off.

Soraya wore the same red coat and brown hat she had on when she arrived. She was accompanied by her German-born mother, Mrs. Eva Esfandiary, and her younger brother Bijan, who may enroll at the University of Colorado.

Soraya, 25, plans to remain in the United States six weeks.

Press Freedom Bill Comes Up In House Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—A freedom of information bill actively sought by press groups comes up for House action this week with the American Society of Newspaper Editors looking on.

By more than coincidence, the bill by Rep. Moss (D-Calif.) is tentatively listed for floor action Wednesday — the day before the April 17 opening of the three-day annual Asne gathering.

Also on Wednesday, the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee plans a hearing on an identical bill by Chairman Hennings (D-Mo.). The measure is backed by the ASNE and other newspaper groups.

The one-sentence bill seeks to knock out a 169-year-old statute from use by federal executive departments as a legal prop for keeping information secret.

The old law authorizes department heads to issue regulations for "the custody, use and preservation" of departmental records. The bill would amend this by saying the law "does not authorize withholding information from the public or limiting the availability of records to the public."

Executive departments have opposed Moss' bill on grounds it could upset established procedures for withholding information and for making it public.

Texan Wins Music Test In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP)—Van Cliburn, a 6-foot-4 Texan whose piano playing excited the Soviets even more than their own products, today was named the winner of a grueling international music contest that drew contestants from all over the Communist world.

The 23-year-old pianist from Kilgore, Tex., was one of two Americans who reached the finals of the Tchaikovsky international piano competition. Daniel Pollack of Los Angeles was rated last among nine finalists.

Even before Cliburn played in the finals Friday night, music-loving Muscovites had heard of his keyboard skill. They jammed the hall for his appearance and called him back for an encore despite contest rules against it.

Cliburn, who won 25,000 rubles (officially $6,250) as first prize and a short concert tour in the Soviet Union, said he was exhausted but happy when the news was leaked to him and the other winners late last night.

In Kilgore, Cliburn's mother, a onetime concert pianist who taught her son until he went to New York to study in 1951, said she and her husband Harvey, an oil company executive, were thrilled.

Cliburn began playing the piano at the age of 3. He won his first contest in Texas at 12 — playing the Tchaikovsky Concerto No. 1 that was one of the pieces in the Moscow competition.

He also played the Tchaikovsky concerto at his debut with the New York Philharmonic, where he will return this fall for four concerts. He was originally booked for only one, but the engagement was extended after he did so brilliantly in Moscow.

Soviet pianist Emil Gilels headed the jury for the piano contest. Communist China's Liu Shi Kin and the Soviet Union's Lev Vlasenko tied for second place. The other finalists included one each from Bulgaria, France, Japan and two more from the Soviet Union. They were weeded out of 50 entries.

Two other Americans entered but did not make the finals. They were Jerome Lowenthal and Norman Shelton, both of Philadelphia.

Dr. Max McKay, 69, an optometrist, and Fred Newman, 73, an insurance agent, started the trip in October aboard the Escape, a 40-foot auxiliary sailboat.

They came to Florida by way of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, some canals and the Gulf of Mexico.

McKay and Newman plan to sail homeward in about a week. They plan to go via the intracoastal waterway to New York, up the Hudson River to the Erie Canal, and back to Bay City via Lake Erie, St. Clair and Saginaw, Mich. They want to be home for the 50th reunion of the Bay City High School class of 1908.

Woman Driver Smashes Into Police Patrol

SALISBURY, Md. (AP)—A woman driver had smashed into the police car Sgt. Guy Wilson was driving. Newspaper reporter Kathryn Miller was sympathizing with him.

"When bad luck's on you, there's nothing to do but grin and bear it," said the sergeant, finishing his story.

"Yep, grin and bear it," Mrs. Miller said. With that, she left City Hall, climbed into her automobile and backed into Sgt. Wilson's personal car.

Montgomery Ward Co. Sets Carnation Night

A community-wide invitation for residents of this area to join in Carnation Night at the Sedalia Montgomery Ward store on Tuesday April 15, from 7 to 9 p.m. was issued today by M. G. Goodrich, store manager. The event has been planned as a preview of Ward Week, which opens the next day and continues through April 26. Visitors to the store Tuesday evening will have the opportunity to receive several attractive gifts, under the supervision of Jimmie Glenn.

Ward Week is a traditional twice a year event for all the company's stores, Goodrich said. Plans for the present occasion began right after Ward Week ended last October. During Fall Ward Week last year, Ward's Sedalia store attracted 1,500 visitors to their preview event.

No effort has been spared, M. G. Goodrich said, to make Carnation Night a friendly party and to make Ward Week the outstanding Spring event in this area.

Fined for Refusing To Shake Negro's Hand

STUTTGART, Germany (AP)—A Texas lieutenant who refused to shake a Negro officer's hand has been given an official reprimand and a $200 fine.

Franklin Potter, attorney for Lt. William B. Morton, 32, of San Antonio, Tex., said the punishment was meted out by Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, 7th Army commander. The Army confirmed Potter's announcement.

Morton had been accused originally of conduct unbecoming an officer after he refused the outstretched hand of Capt. Carl J. O'Kelly of Tucson, Ariz., when Kelly arrived here last December.

The Pentagon ordered the charge against Morton dropped after his attorney argued there was no criminal offense involved.

The matter then was turned over to Gen. Clarke for administrative action.

Protect their precious future now

Like most young fathers, as soon as your children were born, you probably began to think more seriously about your family's future. You began to plan how you could make sure that they would have a secure home and an education, even if something should happen to you.

The time when children are young, however, is usually the time when the family income is far from ample... and the cost of the usual permanent insurance may look quite large. That is why Metropolitan has developed a special life insurance policy called the RPG-5.

This simply means that reduced premiums are guaranteed for the first five years. When the five years are up the premiums will increase to the level where they will remain for the life of the policy... but this increase may be offset by future dividends.

So here is an opportunity to get the full, permanent form of protection that your family needs... at a lower initial premium rate which may better fit your budget.

This is a perfect policy for the family man whose income hasn't quite caught up with his talents. It has all the cash and loan values that make permanent insurance such a wise investment.

Call your Metropolitan Representative today and ask him about the RPG-5. He will welcome the chance to explain this valuable policy... and to show that

Metropolitan service is as local as Main Street... as close as your phone

Navy League Opposes Ike's Defense Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy League has taken a stand against key parts of President Eisenhower's plan to strengthen authority of the secretary of defense and to bring closer unification of the armed services.

But American Veterans of World War II and Korea (Amvets) ranged itself on the opposite side of the question, giving full approval to the defense reorganization proposal.

The Navy League action was regarded as a roundabout expression of Navy opposition to the Eisenhower plan. The league, whose members include nonactive military men and civilians, calls itself the "civilian arm of the Navy."

In a series of resolutions adopted by the group's executive committee, the league aimed its heaviest objections at a proposal to downgrade the Navy, Army and Air Force departments and to increase correspondingly the overall authority of the Defense Department.

Resolutions opposed eliminating from present law a requirement that the military departments be administered separately.

The league also came out against Eisenhower's plan to strengthen the Joint Staff, a military group working under the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The Navy organization said it is opposed to any measures that would lead to formation of a general staff.

French Crewmen Sail On Balsa Wood Raft

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A 67-year-old French scientist and explorer headed across the broad Pacific aboard a balsa wood raft. They are sailing for Tahiti.

Eric de Bisschop almost completed the voyage in the other direction last May, but his raft was wrecked in a storm 400 miles off the South American coast.

He had a new raft built at Constitution, Chile, and sailed it up the coast to Callao, Lima's port. There De Bisschop added several more balsa trunks, repaired his radio and set out yesterday to find the current he hopes will carry his Tahiti Nui II 5,000 miles to the South Seas.

the League said it favored limiting to 5 per cent of total military appropriations the amount of funds the defense secretary could shift from one purpose to another in event of emergency. Secretary of Defense McElroy has said he would need authority to transfer somewhat less than 10 per cent of total defense appropriations.

The Amvets National Executive Committee adopted a resolution saying Eisenhower's proposal to give more authority to the secretary of defense and to streamlining the chain of command would "strengthen our armed forces and provide more manpower potential at the least cost."

Harlem Preacher Shoots Church As 300 Worship

NEW YORK (AP)—Three hundred worshippers, including 100 children, were bowed in silent prayer in a Harlem church yesterday when the Rev. Moody Dunning, 54, their former pastor, entered.

"I'll kill everyone in the church—don't anybody move," the Rev. Mr. Dunning, a Negro, shouted. He drew back his clerical robe, police said, pulled out two shotguns which were suspended on twine hung around his neck and fired both, spraying the walls and ceiling with shotgun pellets.

Fragments of glass cut his left arm. Some members of the congregation pounced upon him while others ran for cover.

An off-duty policeman, Patrolman Joseph Robinson, walking by the Monumental Baptist Church, took the ex-pastor into custody. Police said he had a fully loaded 38-caliber revolver in a pocket.

The Rev. Mr. Dunning was charged with felonious assault and illegal possession of weapons. He was treated for his cut arm at Harlem Hospital, then transferred to the prison ward of Bellevue Hospital.

All he would say was, "It's my church." The present pastor of the church the Rev. Nelson C. Dukes, 40, said the congregation decided three years ago to let his predecessor go because of his age and because he refused to make changes and improvements that the parishioners wanted.

Meter Maids For Sedalia?

Instead of all Democrats, soon Sedalia will have a city administration composed of members of both parties, including the major posts of a mayor elected on a Citizens ticket and a Republican chief of police.

During the election campaign both men indicated they would inaugurate innovations in the city departments on the premise that the end result would bring about more efficiency. These are more or less considered major platform promises the implementation of which will provide news and editorial comment from time to time.

Since the bold approach will be in order using the theme, "Don't be afraid to be different," we would like to offer a minor suggestion relating to the police department's future traffic enforcement activities.

How about the desirability of taking city policemen off parking meter duty and letting women — meter maids, they're called in some cities—take their place in the traffic enforcement picture?

The use of women as traffic officers, as well as meter maids, seems to be working out in larger centers of population like Springfield and Ft. Lauderdale. This may seem like a revolutionary change for Sedalia but since changes are in order why not let women take care of parking control duty, even maintenance of the machines, and the particular assignment of part time duty as traffic officers near the schools? They could even be employed in record-keeping work at headquarters. We can almost hear the moans coming from the regulars.

Nevertheless the idea has some merit or this type of police work by women wouldn't be succeeding elsewhere. Anyway, if women were employed on such tasks all those regulars with guns and holsters could be put on beats they should never have left in the first place.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Apparently US Stalemated in Near East

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—In a recent closed-door session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Humphrey of Minnesota was quizzing Assistant Secretary of State William Rountree about the Middle East.

"How are you planning to rescue American prestige in the Middle East?" Humphrey asked. "What are your plans for combating Nasser's growing power?"

Reluctantly Rountree admitted that the State Department had no plans.

"What about that pipeline you were going to build across Turkey from Iran to the Mediterranean?"

"We aren't building it."

"Why not?"

"The oil companies say it's too expensive."

"What!" shot back Senator Humphrey. "You're letting the oil companies run the policy of the United States? I want you to know that the Senate of the United States does not want our policies dictated by a few oil companies on the basis of money."

"We have given all kinds of support to the oil companies. We have practically supported the country of Iran. There is no reason why we should have them tell us what to do."

"Our pussyfooting, procrastinating policies have left the whole Near East fall away from us," continued Humphrey, "and now you tell me that the oil companies say we can't build a pipeline from Iran across Turkey to safeguard us in case of war."

Note—State Department policy in the Near East has almost always been dominated by the oil companies, not dictated to the oil companies. Herbert Hoover, Jr., who was Undersecretary of State during the Suez crisis, was the former top executive of Union Oil of California, and various oilmen serve in the State Department to advise on Near Eastern affairs. It was the oil companies which advised bringing King Saud to Washington. This worked all right until Saud was virtually ousted by his brother who hates the United States.

Fooling the Public

A report on how the American public has contributed millions of dollars, allegedly for handicapped veterans, is about to be issued by Congressman Olin Teague of Texas.

Teague will tell how the National Association of Veterans Employment Councils sold ball-point pens through the mails, ostensibly for money to help disabled veterans find jobs.

Teague's investigators found that the NAVEC, headed by Harold Keats, located jobs for only 180 veterans—though in 2½ years it collected a cool $3,000,000.

Teague will have stern words also for the Disabled American Veterans, which last year collected $4,000,000 from the American people by selling miniature automobile license tags for key chains. After collecting the $4,000,000 on the grounds that it would be used for charity to disabled vets, the DAV used part of the money to produce the Hidden Treasure television show, on which $300,000 was lost.

Incidentally, the license-tag idea was sold to

Guest Editorial

WICHITA FALLS (Tex.) TIMES: "Getting Fired" Malady. The Texas Medical Association has taken a scientific interest in the malady known as "getting fired." From an expert in the field, 390 doctors at a recent meeting of TMA heard this formula: In nine cases the affliction is plain laziness, to one of incompetence. The speaker was Dr. Kenneth McFarland, educational consultant of General Motors, former guest lecturer for Reader's Digest.

Dr. McFarland said a survey shows 90 per cent of the people who get fired lose their positions for reasons which do not remotely pertain to know-how. Laziness led the list—"where people don't get to work often enough, don't get there on time often enough, and don't do enough work after they get there."

Several types of characteristics mark the people who lose jobs, not for lack of qualifications or ability, but under the broad classification of plain laziness. Some of them have poor health, poor personalities, bad dispositions. They talked too much, were careless, unreliable, untidy and intemperate. Indifference to the job, unwillingness to put out requisite effort, made up the common denominator.

In addition, the medical consultant added that immorality was another cause of vocational failure, "a basic breakdown of character." Disloyalty ranked high in the reasons, with its expression through the whole range of symptoms of job indifference, physical and mental laziness.

Maybe the doctors will come up with a vaccine for the laziness virus. Production would need be on a substantial scale.

the DAV several years ago for $3,000,000 by Abraham Koolish, now under federal indictment in Chicago for mail fraud in connection with his various fund-raising activities.

Congressman Teague has found so much abuse in fund raising for veterans that he has urged the House Government Operations Committee to look into the entire field of tax-exempt charitable money raising. He will urge a new law making it a federal offense to sell or rent "sucker lists" of people who have contributed to one charity and are considered soft touches for other allegedly good causes.

Rebellious Rhee—The American embassy is trying to keep President Syngman Rhee from following through on his offer to put the entire Korean army, air force and navy at the disposal of the Indonesian rebels. Old Rhee believes western countries which refuse to help the rebels are cowards and won't stand up against communism when it counts. But the American embassy, on instructions from John Foster Dulles, is urging him to take it easy. South Korean intervention in Indonesia, Rhee has been told, would bring in Red China, also North Indo-China, might touch off a world war.

Sour on Ike—Believe it or not, but Congressman Noah Mason, dean of Illinois Republicans in Congress, has cracked down on Congressman Tim Sheehan of Chicago, also Republican, for being too pro-Eisenhower. Mason objected to the fact that Sheehan supported some of Ike's legislative proposals. Apparently, Mason believes a Republican congressman should not support a Republican President—if the President's name happens to be Eisenhower. Here are Mason's exact words to Sheehan: "I have lost all enthusiasm to give you any further help."

Elderly Paratroopers—The Army rounded up several veterans from General Jim Gavin's old paratroop outfit to honor him as he retired the other day. The veterans, some of them over 40 years old, agreed to take a final jump for their wartime commander, landing dramatically in front of his reviewing stand. Some of them hadn't bailed out of a plane for 15 years, so when Gavin heard of it he refused to let the older veterans jump.

Cradle of Liberty

A recent European visitor to this country remarked "There is nothing really old in this country and what there is is not original, it's mostly restoration. In Europe most of our historic places are in the hundreds or thousand years old."

America is a new country but even a new country reveres its historic places. In Boston there stands a venerable building, Faneuil Hall, known as "the Cradle of Liberty" whose future is in the hands of a committee of five. A famous meeting hall in the Revolutionary War days, Faneuil Hall was donated by Peter Faneuil, a French Huguenot in 1740, on condition that it would always be used as a market place because he lived in a mansion across the street and wanted to live near the choicest produce in Boston, so Faneuil Hall became the center of the market stalls.

Times have changed. The population has shifted. "The Cradle of Liberty" has become a cradle of dust ridden shops with a declining clientele.

On the top of Faneuil Hall stands another landmark — a twenty-five pound copper grasshopper weathervane. The architect, Shem Drowne, an orphan, fashioned the weathervane in that shape because of a childhood memory of chasing a grasshopper with another little boy. The other little boy invited Drowne to his home for dinner, the friendship continued and Drowne, the orphan, was adopted by the family which was wealthy and Shem was educated as their son. Now the fate of "The Cradle of Liberty" and the weathervane lie in the hands of a committee of five.

The World Today

Khrushchev More Dangerous Than Stalin

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Joseph Stalin looked like a bomb-thrower. Nikita Khrushchev looks like a short-order cook. But that's only one of the differences that make him dangerous to this country.

The three early Communists saints — Lenin, Stalin, Trotsky — had faces tense enough to scare babies. They had fanatic eyes. Khrushchev kisses babies. And you can hardly see the eyes in his fat, round face.

Stalin outlived Lenin and Trotsky but not their fanaticism. He became a symbol of what communism meant to millions: death and cruelty, and a willingness to sacrifice living generations for future generations.

There was something else he didn't outlive either: his own brand of isolationism. This was in part self-imposed and in part forced upon the Soviet Union by the big powers which hemmed her in.

Stalin's combination of isolationism and fanaticism — plus his own inflexibility — had two results:

1. He turned inward and concentrated on building the Soviet Union. In this he was amazingly successful, although at terrible cost in lives. He laid the foundations for the Soviet Union's present enormous power: in science, industry, education and armament, including nuclear weapons.

2. There was nothing persuasive about Stalin. He relied on the only means he knew: naked force. As a result, Soviet Communist expansion was limited.

True, he seized the European satellites in World War II. He had to hold them by force. But when he tried force after the war — in the Berlin blockade, pressure on Greece, Turkey, Iran and war in Korea — he failed.

Instead of attracting his neighbors to Soviet communism, he drove them out of fear to seek the help and protection of the West. A drastic change was needed if communism was to expand.

It's no wonder Khrushchev made the change after Stalin died. Basically there was no change, as Khrushchev demonstrated last week when he warned the satellites the Soviets would crush any anti-Communist revolution.

That should seem sufficient warning to all Soviet neighbors of what to expect if they go Communist. It probably won't. Khrushchev mixes his fast balls with slow curves.

He practices what Stalin refused to learn: if you can't move by force, try persuasion. He's doing it at home and abroad by adopting a policy of reasonableness, neighborliness and togetherness.

If Soviet influence is to spread, he must put an end to the tensions which Stalin created and which drove the non-Communist world westward.

When he calls for summit talks, more trade and an end to nuclear tests, he cannot help being persuasive to a world which wants peace and better living.

The more he eliminates tensions, the more he is bound to weaken to some degree the links this country has with other people who have depended on us for help and protection.

No wonder he's working at it. And no wonder he's having some success.

Personality Factors Loom Large In Traffic Safety

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

A recent report from the Harvard School of Public Health points out that accidents, particularly those on the highway, have reached epidemic proportions. They now constitute a greater threat to safety than many diseases.

The physician, this report says, has as much responsibility for the prevention of accidents as for the prevention and treatment of disease.

There are many factors which enter into traffic safety. The physical and emotional condition of the driver is one.

Recent research has suggested that such factors as attitude, personality and adjustment of the driver are of greater importance to safe driving than slight physical defects. Indeed, the most promising method yet developed for the early detection of the accident repeater is based on the belief that "a man drives as he lives."

Thus low intelligence in other aspects of life, or excessive selfishness, for example, would be likely to show in driving experience.

It is well known that youthful drivers show a high frequency of accidents. That is explained on the basis of inexperience and emotional and social insecurity.

In other words, the high accident rate of youthful drivers as a group is merely a reflection of characteristics which they have in other aspects of life to a greater degree than most older people. Adequate training in driving and in safety principles seems to be an effective way of reducing the number of accidents of this risk group.

There are a number of factors which temporarily influence driving efficiency. Skill is impaired by fatigue, even if this does not reach the point of falling asleep at the wheel. There is an increased risk of accidents with elevation of the blood alcohol, the consumption of various kinds of medicines, and from temporary emotional stress.

The frequency of accidents is influenced by the amount of light, by the weather, by highway design and many other outside factors. The use of dark glasses or tinted windshields during night driving is one. Most tinted windshields permit only about 70 per cent transmission of light compared with the 90 per cent transmission of clear safety glass.

Many questions of automobile and highway design enter into road safety. One of these is the question of safety belts. The information available on crashes in which safety belts have been worn indicate that 5,000 deaths annually would be prevented if everyone used such belts.

These are only a few of the many factors involved in highway safety. That some progress has already been made is shown by the fact that the number of fatal accidents per mile of highway travel has been cut in half during the past 20 years.

Not the Iron Curtain

Curtain of Sham Is the True Cause of Nation's Troubles

By Joseph A. Dear
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Iron Curtain and the activities behind it are not the source of our troubles.

We are in a fix because of another curtain. It is a curtain we have raised ourselves to soften the face of reality. It is a Curtain of Sham. The picture of the world that filters through is not the world that is, but an image compounded of the sentimentality, unfounded optimism, and false morality that beclouds our thinking.

In this respect we have regressed from the point reached by the Greeks of Athens 2400 years ago. During their brief years of glory they were able to look reality in the face, which was no mean feat considering the uncertainties of life then.

They knew, as we know now, that morality has its beginning in regard for the rights of others. Force of circumstance occasionally leads us to ignore the rights of others. The difference between the Athenians and us is that they called a spade a spade, and we do not.

The testing of atomic weapons neatly illustrates the point. Innocents have been injured by the tests. About that there is no doubt. The debatable issue is how many innocents, and the degree of their injury. But once admit injury to an individual, and twist and turn as you like you must then concede that the rights of others have been ignored. And to that extent, our policy has been immoral. But we don't own up.

Frankness would pay. In fact, it is our only weapon in this competition between the Russians and ourselves for the minds of men. And Secretary Dulles lost sight of that until after the event. One could almost hear him sigh as he explained the Administration's reasons for not announcing a suspension of nuclear weapon testing before the Russians did.

Their system, he said, gives the Russians an advantage in the propaganda battle. Why, one wonders, do we have to do battle on their terms? If we speak frankly before the fact, instead of responding after the fact, we will undercut them.

Of course we cannot speak frankly unless we are first frank with ourselves. This involves the making of several admissions.

For instance: We are not paragons of tolerance. Tolerance in the United States has been a matter of geography. Minorities have been able to move to unpopulated areas where they became majorities, and intolerant.

And if we are to be frank, we would have to admit that a foolish sentimentality often substitutes for a sense of realism. To illustrate: A child enters an abandoned ice box and smothers. Very sad, and our hearts go out to the parents. We applaud as communities pass stiff laws penalizing anyone who abandons an ice box.

Fortunately, few children die this way. Many more are killed by cars. Mothers and fathers, too, are slaughtered on the highway. But when you talk about really stiff penalties for drunken driving, for reckless driving, the response is likely to be an uncomfortable cough.

From atomic testing to drunken driving isn't the jump it seems. For it is our attitude towards these things that counts. Our collective attitude is much more likely to determine our fate than atomic war.

Praise To Wife In 'Crises' Makes Husband a Hero

Want to keep your wife glad she married you?

You don't have to get anywhere near the top rungs of the success ladder to make sure she'll always think she won a prize when she got you.

All you really have to do is stand by her in the small emergencies that can look so big to a woman at times. She'll think you're close to perfect if you'll just remember how to behave at times like these:

When she is worried about whether her dress is exactly right for an important party. This is the time when you MUST tell her several times during the evening that she looks beautiful. Don't mention the dress; just make her feel like the most glamorous woman at the party.

When she has a fight with her best friend. Side with your wife—but don't light into the other woman. Remember they'll probably be best friends again in a few days. Just put across the idea that you're always on the side of your wife.

When she works hard to give a nice party and after it is over and she wonders if everyone had a good time. Don't wonder along with her. Drag out the nicest compliment you heard all evening and tell it to her. And while you're doing it, tell her you had a good time yourself.

When the operator at her favorite beauty shop goofs and she is in tears over the too curly permanent or the too short hairdo. This is no time to advise her. Just tell her calmly that she looks mighty pretty to you.

When she's had a hectic day and your arrival home finds her with the dinner not yet started. Suggest going out to dinner and see if she doesn't give you a look that makes you feel like the chairman of the board.

When she has a birthday that is a milestone—one that she has frankly been dreading. That's the time to take her dancing at the most romantic spot in town.

Any man who wants a woman to think he understands her has to recognize those crises that seem small to him, but awfully important to her.

Careful Selections For Early Garden

By A. E. Gaus
MU Extension Horticulturist

The spring gardening season is upon us, despite the late spring, so the garden tips for today concern tips on planting early spring vegetables.

I think all gardeners start out with radishes and lettuce. I suppose the most common mistake most of us make is planting too much of these crops. So if you want to correct this bad habit try to remember to make several small plantings of radishes and leaf lettuce, rather than plant the whole packet at one time.

Often folks have difficulty raising good carrots. First of all, let me say that we do not have the best climate and soil in Missouri to do a real good job of raising carrots. Carrots like a deep, sandy loam soil and like a lot cooler growing weather than is generally found in Missouri. We can partially overcome these disadvantages by preparing the soil deeply and planting varieties which are adapted to our soils. Varieties such as Chantenay Red Core, Touchon, and other stump or blocky rooted varieties are to be preferred over the long tapering rooted varieties. Be sure to plant carrot seed early and thin out the seedlings to stand at least two inches apart. In many instances, carrots do not do well because we try to raise 10 plants in a space where only one can grow satisfactorily.

Harvest carrots while they are still small. They will be much more tasty at this time. If we wait until they reach good size it is generally hot weather and carrots become strong in flavor and woody in texture when the weather gets hot. All carrots should be harvested by the first of July in Missouri. Carrots for fall use can be planted the last week of July or the first week of August.

Remember to buy yellow's resistant varieties of cabbage. We have so many good yellow's resistant varieties of cabbage today we ought to be sure to plant only these varieties. Four good examples are Golden Acre, Jersey Queen, Marion Market and Globe. We do not recommend most of the Flat Dutch, Hollander or Ball-head varieties as they take from 100 to 120 days to reach maturity and in most years this is too late. The cabbage that matures in late June and early July is generally of poor quality in both texture and flavor.

Another vegetable that should be planted now is asparagus. This is one vegetable that ought to be in more gardens. So if you don't have a planting of asparagus, and space is not a limiting factor, try putting out some this spring.

You can either buy one-year-old plants or buy seed and raise your own one-year-old plants which you can re-set next spring. Remember that asparagus is a perennial vegetable that will last for many years in your garden if given proper care. Be sure to locate the asparagus planting on one side of the garden so that it won't interfere with your annual cultural practices of the other vegetables. Be sure the soil is fertile. Asparagus is one vegetable which can stand a lot of lime and manure. Fortify the manure with some superphosphate and work the lime and manure deeply into the soil.

Asparagus need not be planted in a deep trench as is commonly thought. A furrow should be dug deep enough however, so that the crown of the one-year-old asparagus plant is about three inches below the soil level. Spread the roots out in the furrow and cover plant with one inch of soil. As the asparagus grows keep filling in the trench. In subsequent years a small, broad ridge can be built up over the row to facilitate drainage.

Do not harvest asparagus until the third year after planting, and then only for a few weeks at the beginning of the season. It is important to build up a good crown and fleshy root system before we begin extensive harvesting.

Pig Crop Estimates At a High Figure

Pig crop estimates for the corn belt states is still at a high figure. Number of sows farrowed and intended to farrow this spring in Missouri and throughout mid-west is six per cent larger than last spring, says USDA Crop Reporting Board.

Number of all hogs and pigs on farms March 1 in the nine major corn belt states totals more than 35,500,000. That's six per cent more than a year earlier and four per cent larger than same time in 1956, two years ago.

Should Not Overdo Vegetable Planting

It looks as if Missourians will get a chance to do some gardening soon, but Art Gaus, University of Missouri extension horticulturist has this suggestion. Don't over-plant such crops as radishes and lettuce.

Plant about half of the seed packet, then plant the other half about two weeks later. That way all of the crop won't mature at once and you'll be able to enjoy the fresh vegetables over a longer period.

Egg Prices Rising After Hitting Low

Egg prices over the nation are rising after hitting what is thought to be 1958 low. According to the USDA, egg prices rose sharply in last of February from a point that likely will prove to be 1958 low.

Farmers' prices for eggs through spring probably will continue higher than a year ago, says AMS, perhaps by even a wider margin than in mid-February.

Hog Producers Plan Feeder Pig Sales

South Missouri hog producers have set late April and early May for spring feeder pig sales in nine counties. More than 11,800 pigs have been consigned for the nine sales, according to E. S. Matteson, University of Missouri extension animal husbandman.

More than 300 pigs have been consigned for the first sale to be held in Greenville, April 21. Other sales will be at Ellington, April 22; Birch Tree, April 23; Houston, April 24; Gainesville, April 25; Sullivan, April 26; and Salem, April 30. The two sales in May are at Vienna, May 1; and Versailles, May 2.

All sales are farmer-owned and operated. Consignments are graded into uniform lot under supervision of Extension Service specialists, says Matteson. All pigs are vaccinated for cholera at least 30 days prior to sale dates, and a veterinarian is on hand to inspect pigs as they arrive sale day.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain, Stops Itching as it Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all — results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H. At your druggist. Money back guarantee. *Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

NEW OPERATION—This is the lime plant at the T & O Limestone quarry northwest of Georgetown owned by Earl Thomas, James A. (Jim) Harvey, one of the plant operators, stands beside a new $17,000 dryer. The other machine is a crusher. Dry limestone goes from the dryer to the adjoining crusher and then up the conveyor, left, to a large hopper. From this hopper it is hauled direct to farm fields or to a stock pile for later use.

Lime Quarry Puts Dryer Into Use

The T & O Limestone quarry northwest of Georgetown has put to use a new $17,000 dryer in its limestone crushing operation to overcome the saturation that has occurred over the past several months.

This quarry was the source of the rock used in the concrete landing strips at Whiteman Air Base. The pile of material behind the machines is screenings left from that operation. James A. Harvey, one of the plant operators, estimated at least 200,000 tons piled up there. These screenings were too coarse to use as agricultural lime so the owner, Earl Thomas, started running it through a crusher.

When the material was dry last summer they could grind a ton a minute. However, the lime is now saturated with water and would not feed through the crusher. The dryer was finally purchased. It does slow down the operation to about 45 tons per hour but does allow them to operate.

The wet lime is pushed up to a hole just behind the board wall at the back of the machine with a small bulldozer. From there it feeds by gravity into a pit from where it is picked up by buckets on an endless chain and fed into the dryer.

Lime or calcium is one of the most important plant foods, especially for legumes. Pettis County folks have been using it for many years but still are not using enough.

The T & O Company is the main agricultural lime producer in the county though the Howard Bros. quarry on west Main Street and the Menefee quarry east of Dresden produce a lot of road material and some for farm use. Some lime also comes into the county from the Castle Bros. quarry at Otterville, the Howard quarry on Highway 40 and probably a little from Clinton.

The T & O Company has been producing nearly 50,000 tons per year since 1950. Quite a bit of this lime has gone to Benton county and they expect to sell some in Johnson and Saline counties in 1958.

Pettis County needs more lime annually than the entire annual output of the T & O plant. Farm folks should make every effort to at least use the lime available annually on the A.S.C. program. All legume crops need lime and whenever the soil pH gets below 5.5 the response to other plant foods is also reduced.

Implants Did Not Increase Gains on Pasture

A goodly number of local folks were able to get over to "Feeders Day" at Columbia last Friday. However, for the benefit of those who couldn't go I will try to review some of the reports.

One question asked the first of the week was whether it paid to implant cattle on pasture with stilbestrol or similar hormones. I answered that present results didn't indicate that it did. The inquirer had read some reports that it had. I suggested that he wait till the feeder day results were out but his customer was ready then.

The results reported at Columbia were on some 600 to 700 pound cattle that were implanted in late April. Records were kept until July 10. The cattle were on orchard grass and lespedeza but the lespedeza probably hadn't made much growth by that time.

The gains were low with both lots and I have seen much better gains on grass. If the gains had been higher the story might have been different. However, the cattle implanted with 24 mg. of Hexestrol gained only 1.1 pounds per day while the untreated cattle gained 1.2 pounds per day.

Hormones Increase Rate and Economy of Winter Gains

Some of the same cattle were checked from Jan. 3 to April 23 to see the results of implants with a good roughage ration.

Three groups were set up with one receiving a 12 mg. implant, the second a 24 mg. implant and the third lot had no treatment. The 24 mg. implant lot ate less feed and made more rapid gains than either of the other two lots. That lot gained 230 pounds and had a daily gain of 2.15 pounds. Their feed intake per 100 pounds land, Landrace, Hampshire and Duroc pigs were used on the tests. Considering only those pigs that completed the test, the variation of the various characteristics was quite interesting. The variation in rate of gain of the boards was from a maximum of 2.04 pounds per read per day to a minimum of 1.37 pounds per head per day. Backfat probes on the boards at approximately 200 pounds ranged from an average of 0.8 inches to 1.73 inches. Average daily gains for the barrows ranged from 1.27 to 1.81 pounds. Feed efficiency ranged from 289 to 348 pounds of feed per 100 pounds gain.

The carcass data on the barrows show a great deal of variation. Carcass backfat ranged from 1.19 to 1.92 inches. Carcass length varied from 27.4 inches to 30.4 inches. Loin eye area varied from 2.67 to 4.5 sq. in. The per cent of lean cuts (ham, loin butt and picnic) in the carcass varied from 42.8 to 50.3 per cent.

These variations give an idea of the range that exists in the various characteristics of hogs. The variation would have been greater had it been possible to test more hogs. The value of these data in aiding in the selection of breeding stock is apparent.

One of the big problems encountered was feed wastage. All feeders were of the same make and the feeders were new. This was the first time that they had

Confinement Feeding of Hogs
Professor L. F. Tribble reported no confinement feeding of hogs. In his report he covered management, feeding and disease control. In his conclusions he listed six problems and answered questions. They were:

1. Disease situation after a few years of operation.
2. Initial cost of buildings and equipment is high. A lot of capital will be tied up.
3. Abundant water supply needed; pressure system desirable.
4. Removal of manure with a minimum of labor and expense.

Cowboys Play First Season In Big Eight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oklahoma State's Cowboys, playing their first season in the Big Eight Conference, are setting the pace in the baseball pennant race after sweeping a 3-game series with Kansas State.

Coach Toby Greene's Cowboys got excellent pitching in the Kansas State series from Roy Peterson and Don Soergel. Both threw 2-hitters in 3-1 and 5-0 victories at Manhattan last Saturday. Joe Horlen posted his third victory in defeating K-State 5-4 Friday.

Now the only undefeated team in Big Eight play, Oklahoma State will be out of competition until April 21-22 when they meet Oklahoma's Sooners in Stillwater.

Everybody else in the league will be busy this week. Non-league activity will include Iowa State at Iowa State Teachers and Missouri at Washington of St. Louis Tuesday.

Following the conference program of one 9-inning game on Friday and two 7-inning double-headers on Saturday will be Kansas at Missouri, Nebraska at Iowa State and Kansas State at Colorado.

In other games last Saturday Kansas handed defending champion Iowa State a couple of defeats 13-4 and 8-3 as fine pitching by Lefty Larry Miller figured in both games; Missouri hit well in winning a pair from Nebraska 9-6 and 12-5, and Colorado and Oklahoma broke even in two. Colorado won the opener 1-0 and Oklahoma the second 12-0.

Charleston Team Bent on Making A Good Showing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American Assn. began the 1958 baseball season yesterday, but already it's clear that Charleston's Senators are bent on making good a few campaign promises.

There were two new factors involved as the Senators broke a string of scoreless innings to beat St. Paul in 15 frames 1-0.

One was the presence of 5,242 fans, the best Charleston turnout in more than five years. Another was the six-hit pitching of Don Lee, a big righthander whose father, Thornton Lee, was himself a night hurler in the major leagues a few years ago.

The teams got better than a two-day jump on their league rivals, who don't start their campaigns until tomorrow night.

The Saints will again be at Charleston then. In other contests, Minneapolis opens at Louisville, Omaha is at Wichita, the defending champion, and Denver goes to Indianapolis.

Charleston broke the scoreless duel in the 15th inning on Wayne Terwilliger's infield single and Ozzie Virgil's line double to right. The loss went to Glenn Mickens, who took over the inning before St. Paul starter Stan Williams, a 19-game winner last year.

Lee, who stands 6-4 and weighs 200 pounds, struck out 11 Saints and walked only one.

Manager Thinks Braves Are Due Pennant Again

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Manager Fred Haney said today he thinks his world champion Milwaukee Braves will capture the National League pennant again this season.

"But anybody who says we'll win in a runaway is crazy," he added.

Most of his players agreed although big Joe Adcock declared emphatically, "We'll win by 12 games—at least."

Haney would gladly settle for the Braves' eight-game margin of last year.

"We're stronger," he said, "but so is the rest of the league. I think the race will be just as tough as last year. Nobody is likely to pull away from the field until September, if then."

"We've got to bear down from the start," he continued. "I think the players know that. I haven't found the need for cautioning them against overconfidence. They know they have to work just as hard as last year."

Catcher Del Crandall said, "I know it sounds corny, but the club to beat is the club you play today. I don't care how many games we win by, one game or half a game. It doesn't matter as long as we win."

The NL's Most Valuable Player, Hank Aaron, figures the Braves can win by eight or nine games.

"I think eight is a close race," he said with a grin. "Twenty would be a runaway."

Stokes Fighting Off Encephalitis Attack

CINCINNATI (AP)—Maurice Stokes, husky pro basketball star, shows some improvement in his recovery from a severe attack of encephalitis or sleeping sickness.

That's the report at St. Elizabeth Hospital in nearby Covington, Ky., where Stokes' condition was changed from serious to be fair yesterday.

But hospital aides said the ace Cincinnati Royals' rebounder is still not yet conscious.

Stokes has been in the hospital since March 15 when he became critically ill on a flight here with teammates from Detroit.

Major League Opens With Full Schedule

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

With today's traditional Washington opener out of the way, major league baseball opens the 1958 season for real tomorrow.

The San Francisco Giants and the Los Angeles Dodgers, late of New York and Brooklyn, renew their long rivalry on rookie grounds in San Francisco as heroes of the National League's new West Coast outposts.

For the first time since 1950, neither the Giants nor the Dodgers will hoist a new National League pennant.

That honor belongs to Milwaukee, where the Braves will run up the NL bunting along with the world championship banner before taking on the Pittsburgh Pirates in County Stadium.

The full schedule, with expected attendance and 1957 pitching records, looks like this:

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Pittsburgh at Milwaukee (43,000)
— Bob Friend (14-18) vs. Warren Spahn (21-11).
PHILADELPHIA AT CINCINNATI
(30,000) — Robin Roberts (10-22) vs. Brooks Lawrence (16-13).

Los Angeles at San Francisco (22,000) Don Drysdale (17-9) vs. Ruben Gomez (15-13).
Chicago at St. Louis (Night) (19,000) — Jim Brosnan (5-5) vs. Wilmer Mizell (8-10).

AMERICAN LEAGUE
New York at Boston (25,000) — Don Larsen (10-4) vs. Willard Nixon (12-13).
Washington at Baltimore (27,000) — Chuck Stobbs (8-20) vs. Connie Johnson (14-11).
Detroit at Chicago (25,000) — Jim Bunning (20-8) vs. Billy Pierce (20-12).

Kansas City at Cleveland (35,000) — Ned Garver (6-13) vs. Herb Score (2-1).

National League President Warren Giles will attend the Dodgers-Giants game.

In Cleveland, Score starts the trip back from that terrible eye injury of last season—a dreadful accident that almost ended what may be the most promising career in baseball.

Score, the 24-year-old, fire-balling southpaw; new manager Bob Bragan, the guy who joked his way out of the National League; and new general manager Frank Lane, the man who made contenders of the Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals, spearhead the Injuns' comeback bid in the AL. They finished sixth last year.

Spahn, the NL's only 20-game winner last season, will be going for his 225th victory, tops among active NL pitchers.

The New York Yankees are after their ninth American League pennant in the last 10 years.

'World Citizen No. 1' Heading Back Home

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Garry Davis, who gave up his American citizenship 10 years ago to proclaim himself World Citizen No. 1, is heading back home. This time he says he'll stay there.

The 36-year-old band leader's son, who began his campaign to tear down world boundaries after serving as a wartime bomber pilot, boarded the liner Constitution yesterday with a U.S. entry visa and 80 cents in his pocket.

Davis told newsmen he hopes to go back into show business but insisted his worldwide wanderings were not wasted. "I hope, in any case, that my example will be followed," he declared.

The U.S. consulate here loaned Davis his passport money and gave him a stateless person's passport. American officials said he would have to go through the standard naturalization process if he wants his U.S. citizenship back.

Ike to Those Opening Ball At Griffith

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, an old ballplayer himself, goes out to Griffith Stadium today to make the pitch that launches another baseball season.

Following a custom established in the heyday of Mathewson and Cobb, he will toss out the first ball as the Washington Senators meet the Boston Red Sox.

Close to 28,000 fans are expected for the 1958 debut of major league baseball. The game is the only one scheduled today. Other clubs start tomorrow.

Eisenhower, who played semi-pro ball one summer as a youth, will be making his sixth pitch as a president.

After he performs, Washington's Pedro Ramos and Boston's Frank Sullivan will get down to the real business of pitching. Like Eisenhower, both are right-handers.

Managers Cookie Lavagetto of Washington and Mike Higgins of Boston chose their hurlers for obvious reasons. Ramos, with an 11-5 career against Boston, has been more effective opposing the Red Sox than against any other club. Sullivan, a 6-foot-7 giant, is 10-4 against Washington in five seasons.

Ramos, 22-year-old Cuban, had a 12-16 record throughout last year, when the Senators wound up in last place. Sullivan was 14-11 for third-place Boston.

Higgins pondered one big question—whether to start league-bating champion Ted Williams. An ankle injury has slowed Williams down in spring training, but in five recent pinch-hitting appearances he has socked two homers and a single, driven in four runs and walked twice.

If Williams stays out, Gene Stephens will open in left.

Says Movies Suffer After TV Release

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Selling full-length motion pictures to television was a tragic mistake, says Spyros P. Skouras.

Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox, said last night that the motion picture industry suffered irrevocably after releasing films to TV. He pleaded that pictures made after 1948 not be sold to the rival medium.

"It was a tragic mistake to sell films to television," he said, "and we must not make the same mistake again."

Skouras' remarks were made at a banquet honoring him as the 1958 recipient of the Milestone Award of the Screen Producers Guild, given in recognition of his efforts toward advancement of the movie industry.

Colt Arms Boost Credited to TV

DALLAS (AP)—Business is booming for at least one manufacturer of old-fashioned Western handgun, two executives of a Hartford, Conn., firm said yesterday.

Fred A. Roff Jr., vice president of the company (Colt), attributed a big jump in sales to popularity of Western programs on television.

Several weapons popular in frontier days are being revived and sold for up to $145.

"We hadn't made any for nearly 80 years," said Thomas J. Turner, another official of the firm. "Now we are constantly getting requests for them."

Giles Removes Ban on Quotes By National League Umpires

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—President Warren C. Giles of the National League hopes to put the baseball fan in closer touch with things this season.

He has given specific orders to his umpires that they can be quoted on all disputes that arise during a game.

"Each umpiring team of four men will include a captain," says Fred Fleig, assistant to Giles. "The captain and the umpire involved in a disputed play on the field will meet with the press outside the umpires' dressing room after a game."

In the past an umpire involved in a dispute remained as quiet as a mummy until he had made his report to Giles.

"Mr. Giles could take the easy way out," says Fleig, "by appointing a supervisor. But a supervisor can be in only one city at a time. Furthermore, Mr. Giles always felt that a supervisor of umpires might side with an umpire when it came to a player-umpire dispute."

"This season the captain of each team will take charge of such things as a double decision. The plate umpire will call games during rain but only after consulting with his captain."

Russian Matmen Plan to Visit Rogers Memorial

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Eight Russian wrestlers are scheduled to visit a memorial to a famed American who did some wrestling of his own as a youth—against steers.

The touring Russian team, successful in its first two matches with an American all-star team, will visit the Will Rogers memorial at Claremore, near here.

Tomorrow night they close out their Oklahoma tour with a match here. Thursday they face the Americans in the final match of the trip at New York. It's the first athletic competition between the two nations in America.

Smartly trained and using their experience to great advantage, the Russians have bowled over the U. S. team 7-1 and 5-1 with two draws. The latter score came Saturday night at Oklahoma State University at Stillwater.

The Russians have run away with very few matches, scoring falls in only three of the 6 wrestled to date. But they have demonstrated marked superiority on the mat while staying out of trouble during the standing positions periods where Americans usually excel.

Working against the Americans, most of whom only last week were working hard for national AAU titles, is their unfamiliarity with the more conservative international rules which most other nations follow at all times.

However, they've proved no mystery to one American. Tough little Terry McCann, AAU champion from Tulsa and former NCAA titleholder from Iowa University, has scored two pins for the Americans against his 125½-pound opponent, Vladimir Arsenyan.

Cards Lose Two To KC Athletics

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals wound up a sorry exhibition year here yesterday with two losses to the Kansas City Athletics in a doubleheader.

The two defeats gave the Athletics the Governor's Cup, awarded annually to the winner of the series climaxing spring training for the Missouri rivals. The series replaced the old Browns-Cardinals St. Louis city series.

The Cards lost the first game 7-1 and the Athletics were victorious the second time around 3-2 in the 14th inning.

Cardinal pitchers were treated roughly in both contests with Von McDaniel, the fourth Cardinal hurler in the second game, the loser.

The Red Birds won 16 games and lost 17 in exhibition play.

Little Boxers Now Getting Big Purse

By MURRAY ROSE
The Associated Press

The little guys in boxing aren't fighting for peanuts any more. Not the champions, anyway.

Argentina's world flyweight king, undefeated Pascual Perez, will cash in to the tune of a $40,000 guarantee Saturday night in Caracas when he faces Venezuela's latest boxing idol, Ramon Arias, in a 15-round title fight.

This follows on the fat purses collected in their last outings by bantamweight titlist Alphonse Halimi of France and featherweight ruler Hogan (Kid) Bassey of Nigeria.

Halimi received $50,000, as did loser Raul (Raton) Macias of Mexico, for their title scrap at Los Angeles Nov. 6. That fight grossed $209,884.

Bassey picked up $70,000 for knocking out Mexico's Ricardo (Little Bird) Moreno at Los Angeles in the third round April 1. The plucked Little Bird earned $38,000 for the loss of his feathers. They drew $215,047.

Perez, 32, undefeated in 45 fights since he turned pro in 1952, is a big favorite to keep his title. Arias, 22 and a pro two years, has a 13-1 record with only two knockouts.

Middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson and ex-champ Rocky Graziano will face each other again—as seconds—tonight at New York's St. Nicholas Arena.

Sugar Ray will be in the corner of spartan Otis Woodard of New York, who faces hard-hitting middleweight Eddie Andrews, Lowell, Mass., in the 10-round television feature. Graziano will whisper words of advice to Andrews (27-7-2), who is a 3-1 favorite over the oft-beaten Woodard (9-14-4).

Du Mont will telecast at 10 p. m., EST.

Bobby Boyd, Chicago, and Neal Rivers, Las Vegas, two strong-punching middleweights, collide in the Wednesday night TV feature at Chicago Stadium.

Alex Miteff, 23-year-old Argentine heavyweight contender, is favored to beat Germany's Willi Besmanoff again in their return 10-rounder at Washington's New Capitol Arena Friday night. It's a TV fight.

Argonne Research Doctor 'Sees' Despite Blindness

SUCCESS AGAINST ODDS: Dr. Bradley Burson, although nearly blind, heads a research team at Argonne National Laboratory. He is operating the device he rigged to measure the decay rate of radio isotopes.

CHICAGO (AP) — The immediate world of Dr. Bradley Burson is a vast, gray blur peopled with vague shapes and shadows. He lives on the threshold of blindness. But it is the physicist's world beyond this opaque haze that really matters to him. Stepping into it at the Argonne National Laboratory, things leap into focus, the fuzziness disappears, and even the abstract takes shape.

There, in a wing of the Physics Building, he heads a small group of researchers peering into the mysteries of radioactive decay. "Nuclear spectroscopy," they call it.

What they want to know is how stable isotopes — or forms of elements — react when bombarded with beta and gamma rays. What new radioactive elements are produced?

The answers have no immediate practical application, he admits. Their business is simply "to make knowledge."

Virtually blind for 25 years, Dr. Burson, a robust, restless man of 40, views both of his worlds matter-of-factly. Convinced he is unremarkable, he suggests that any opinion to the contrary stems from "the blind prejudice against blindness."

The physicist's condition results from a boyhood accident with a gun. A bullet entered his left temple, severing his optical nerve and producing what doctors called disrupting coriditis: he could discern objects only as blurry shapes; with difficulty, he could read large-size type.

"From the standpoint of doing things, I might as well be totally blind," he says.

The logical thing was to learn Braille, and this he soon accomplished. But his real concern was how to provide for his future security.

He first thought of teaching, and with this in mind he enrolled in Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., as a physics student. But he learned that California law prevented a blind person from teaching school, so he transferred to the University of Illinois, switched courses and won a law degree in 1942.

He never practiced law. Within two years he was back at Illinois working on his master's and doctor's in physics, and it paid off with the job at Argonne.

Because the job involved knowing what went on in the lab as well as what theories lay behind it, he set about developing instruments he could handle unaided.

By increasing the sensitivity of one measuring device, and using two photoelectric cells to translate these measurements into light impulses strong enough to convey an impression to him, he found he could handle the device as well as anyone.

He also developed an indicator that would register the desired data by means of an interruption in tone signals — this to substitute for the ordinary visual calibrations.

Nowadays, when not at the lab, he is busy designing a new home for his family — a wife and three children — and with his role as board member-at-large of the National Federation of the Blind.

He calls the federation "the only national organization representative of the blind" because it consists solely of blind members and officers. In this capacity, he heads a committee which is studying what factors are involved in the employability of blind persons.

"What the employer doesn't understand, and what the blind person often fails to understand too, is that the great majority of physical things, if properly delegated, aren't a problem. Can a man run a drill press or can't he? The only way to find out is to let him 'do it.'"

The interview at an end, Dr. Burson rose briskly and trotted down the bleak corridor to the lab, where he paused at the door.

"You know, that 'blind prejudice' works both ways," he said with a grin. "People think of us either as that guy staggering down the street carrying a cane or accordion — or as a mysterious genius who does weird and wonderful things."

Rain Is Not Expected To Be Great in State

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Missouri is in the path of moisture, but it is not believed the precipitation will be great.

Cloudy with occasional rain, spreading northward over most of the state is the forecast. There will be rain tonight and rain diminishing in the east portion Tuesday.

At 8 a.m., the heaviest fall reported in the state was .53 of an inch at Nevada.

Low temperatures tonight will be in the 40s north to around 50 south. Tuesday's highs will be in the 50s east to the lower 60s west.

President Will Make Major Economy Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower will make a major speech on the nation's economy the evening of May 20 in New York.

Announcing this today, the White House said Eisenhower will address the concluding dinner session at the annual meeting of the American Management Assn. Conference on economic mobilization.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said he is informing the major television and radio networks. There has been no word yet on whether the networks will carry it.

USDA Reports Hope In Corn Borer Fight

Two USDA entomologists have reported hope for aid in the corn-borer fight through development of resistant corn and micro-organisms. The two experts appeared before the annual meeting of the North Central Branch of Entomological Society of America in St. Louis recently.

W. D. Guthrie told of borer resistance found in corn, and George T. York described micro-organisms that destroy the pests as effectively as some insecticides.

The European corn-borer cost U. S. farmers nearly $160 million in 1957. Tests are now underway, report the USDA entomologists, to develop borer resistant corn varieties and borer-killing micro-organisms that exist in corn plants.

Use Tractor Plow For Garden Breaking

That job of garden-plowing can be done faster and more easily, says Art Gaus, University of Missouri extension horticulturist. The answer is, use the tractor plow for the job.

If possible, locate your garden site where it's easy to get to a tractor, and plan to have fairly with long rows. Then open the fences at each end so the tractor can be turned around. If the garden site is a permanent one, you might like to put in gates at the ends.

It'll save you time in garden preparation, says Gaus, and with late spring weather in Missouri, time is going to be an important factor this spring.

Keep Wooden Joints Tight For Economy

By T. O. Hodges
MU Associate Professor
In Agricultural Engineering

The high cost of construction and the changes brought about by mechanization have led to the design of more open-type buildings which in many cases are far more susceptible to wind damage than were buildings in previous days. As costs go up, the natural trend is to try to use less material, with resulting weaknesses occurring at various points within a building. Also, mechanization in and around farm buildings has led to the elimination of interior supports within the buildings. Loads from the roof and from overhead storage that were formerly carried to the ground through interior supports within a building are now being transferred to the side walls of the building and all of these loads must eventually end up being transferred through joints within the building. With smaller structural members and greater loads, it is frequently quite difficult to construct a wooden joint that will withstand high wind loads to which the buildings are exposed.

Everybody knows that the joint is the weakest point in wood construction. For this reason, it is of primary concern to give special attention to the joints when building a new farm building. The most widely used fastener in wood construction, of course, is nails. They are cheap and they are easy to use; however, frequently it is not possible to nail two pieces of wood together such that they even approach the load-carrying capacity of the materials, themselves. When placed in shear, a nail joint begins to yield under a small load, crushes a few fibers at the adjoining surfaces, and bends.

In nailed joints, the only way to avoid this is to simply use more nails. But, if too many nails are used in a joint, the nails split the wood and have even less value. This means then, that the only effective way to use nails in wood construction where heavy loads are transferred between members is to simply use large enough members that many nails can be driven. This, of course, leads to an increased cost because larger member sizes are being used than would actually be necessary if the connections could be made some other way.

Bolts are a second type of fastener for wooden members. In general, bolts are more dependable than nails. In bored holes, they have better bearing against the wood. Large in diameter, each bolt has more bearing. Head and nut keep the nut from pulling out of the wood. Not only do bolts carry greater loads, but there is less slippage in the joints under small loads. This may be very important, since slippage of nail joints permits distortion of a building long before actual failure occurs.

A third type of fastener for wood construction, recently introduced, and not yet common in farm construction, is the timber connector which is much superior to bolts alone. Each connector requires one bolt. The principal function of the connector is to increase the shear resistance between members; that is, to increase the resistance of crushing the fibers at the connection and permitting one member to slip over another.

A fourth possibility for connecting wooden structural members together is the use of new high-quality glues which are now readily available on the market. Addition of glue to a nail joint eliminates slippage. Problems in the use of glue include loss of contact area due to the warping of boards, and the danger that workmen may not use enough glue to get best results. In general, however, glue is easy to use and can be applied very economically.

In summary, we would like to emphasize that special attention should be given in the construction of farm buildings to good construction practices in fastening structural members together.

What's more, this week you'll not only find sensationally low price tags on every Dodge model, but we'll offer you the very top value on your present car in trade. So don't put it off. Tanker Abandons Try For Distance Record

WESTOVER AIR FORCE
BASE, Mass. (AP)—Lack of tail
winds has forced a huge jet tanker to abandon its attempt to set a nonstop record from Yokota,
Japan, to Madrid, Spain.

The four-engine Stratojet tanker plane set down at Westover Yesterday after streaking 7,000 miles.

The plane carried enough fuel for a 10,000-mile flight, but favorable jet stream winds were needed to push it to 11,487 miles to Madrid.

At dawn yesterday, the jet with its crew of seven and a civilian streaked out over the Atlantic, but when it got 660 miles out the crew decided it would never make it to Madrid.

It reversed its course and landed at Westover 79 minutes later.

The tanker had taken off Saturday from the American base at Yokota, Japan, just outside Tokyo in its attempt to crack the world record of 11,326 miles set with a U.S. Navy propeller-driven bomber in 1946.

Six Seeking New Jersey Senate Post

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—A field of six men seeking the job of U.S. senator from New Jersey will be narrowed to two tomorrow when the State holds its primary election after a campaign dominated by the recession.

By unanimous vote of all six—three in each party—the economic downturn has been declared the topic dearest to the hearts of voters this year.

The candidates agree something should be done about it. They disagree on what.

Among the Republican Senate candidates, Rep. Robert W. Keane (R-NJ) and Robert Morris, former counsel to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, favor an immediate income tax cut.

The third man in their race—former White House appointments secretary Bernard M. Shanley—says such a cut might damage the economy permanently. He wants to reduce taxes for small businessmen as a start.

The Democratic camp, with its first senate primary contest since 1936, shows a similar lineup on the tax issue.

Favoring an income tax slice are John J. Grogan, mayor of Hoboken and president of the Shipbuilding Workers Union, and Joseph E. McLean, former Princeton University professor and now state commissioner of conservation.

The third Democratic aspirant, former Congressman Harrison A. Williams Jr., says he has seen no tax cut proposal yet that would have any effect. He wants government construction programs.

New Automobile Labor Contract Talks Begin

DETROIT (AP)—The new auto labor contract negotiations here for more than 600,000 workers start hitting on all cylinders this week.

The schedule of talks, involving the controversial profit-sharing demand, brought General Motors together today with both the International Electrical Workers and the United Auto Workers.

Tomorrow American Motors, the smaller producer, sits down for the first time with the auto union. AMC's proposal to stand fast on terms of the present three-year contract already has been rejected by the UAW.

At about the same time tomorrow the UAW, working with separate teams of negotiators, will resume with Ford and Chrysler.

Generally Fair Spring Weather in Prospect

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were a couple of major wet belts but generally pleasant spring weather appeared in prospect for most of the nation today.

Heaviest rains hit the southern Plains during the night and the wet weather extended eastward Valley. Several funnel clouds were reported in northern Oklahoma, but none touched the ground.

Thunderstorms rumbled through Texas, with heavy showers and hail in an area from Austin to San Marcos. The Weather Bureau reported one of the heaviest rainfalls ever recorded in a short period at the Austin airport. The downpour during an eight-minute period measured .86 inches.

The second wet belt was in the Pacific Northwest.

During World War II, the United States built 86,000 tanks.

TO MOVE UP—Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark) is in line for chairmanship of the powerful House Ways and Means committee. Post was held by the late Jere Cooper.

Lukemia Drama Ends In Death of Child

WASHINGTON (AP)—"I'd get well if daddy came back," said little Paula Ann Backover one day last December.

Daddy had disappeared about the time a $2,300 shortage was found in the accounts of the bowling alley where he worked.

But newspaper accounts of his daughter's serious illness caught up with Robert Backover, 28, in Los Angeles. He wired home from Los Angeles Feb. 9: "Tell P.A. I'm coming."

Two days later Backover was tearfully reunited with his daughter. Afterward he went to the nearby Hyattsville, Md., police headquarters to surrender for a grand larceny charge, still pending.

The next few weeks were joyous ones for 6-year-old Paula Ann. And for her dad too.

But Paula Ann didn't get well. She lapsed into a coma Saturday and died of leukemia in a Washington hospital. Backover collapsed and was placed under a doctor's care at his home.

Greek Easter Outing Train Crashes Sunday

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A train injured, most of them critically, packed with holidaying bank clerks crashed into a 200-foot ravine near Yannina, in northwest Greece, yesterday, killing nine persons. Forty-two persons were added each year since.

Knob Noster Woman Hurt In Car Wreck

Mrs. Mary Yokley To Hospital In KC; Three Others Hurt

Mrs. Mary Yokley, 36, Knob Noster, was severely injured at about 9:40 a. m. Monday in a three-car collision one and a half miles west of Pittsville that injured three other persons.

Mrs. Yokley received four fractures in her left ankle and foot, a fracture on both sides of her lower jaw, deep lacerations and possible internal injuries. Relatives in Knob Noster reported last night that her condition was satisfactory. She was taken to the Research Hospital in Kansas City.

Also injured was Herbert James Angell, 42, Independence, driver of a 1956 Ford; Benita Marie Knight, 29, passenger in a 1949 Ford driven by her husband Otis Knight, Barnett, Mo., and Mrs. Rachel Ann Smith, 62, also of Barnett and a passenger in the Knight Car. Otis Knight escaped injuries while his wife suffered bruises and abrasions and a bump on the head—and was taken to the Warrensburg Medical Center along with Mrs. Smith, who received bruises and abrasions on the right arm and left leg. Both were treated and dismissed. Angell was taken to the Independence Sanitarium. He suffered what was believed to have been a serious neck injury.

According to State Highway Patrolman Lyle Krumme of Warrensburg who investigated, said the accident occurred as Angell, driving his Ford West, apparently hit some mud lying on the highway, lost control and slid into the path of the oncoming Mercury driven by Mrs. Kokley, then spun on down the highway and collided with the Ford driven by Knight, who was also going east. All three persons in the Knight car were thrown out.

None of the vehicles hit headon. According to Trooper Krumme, Angell's left front fender collided with the same fender on Mrs. Yokley's car, then, after spinning around, collided into the left side of the Knight vehicle.

The Angell and Kokley cars were demolished, and Knight's vehicle was damaged on the left side.

Several Issues Face State Voters Today

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Two bond issues, an annexation and an increase in school taxes are to be voted on by several Missouri communities today in special elections.

Voters at Macon will cast ballots on a $810,000 sewer bond issue for extension and improvement of the present sewer system. The project is estimated to cost a total of $990,000, of which $180,000 will be paid by the government.

A $315,000 bond issue for construction of a new high school is up for a vote in Ray County School District No. 4.

Another school election at Jefferson City will decide whether to raise school taxes by 48 cents to $2.40, to provide more money for teachers' salaries.

In Kirkwood voters will decide whether the city shall annex 101 acres of land south of the city and whether to establish land clearance authority under which federal funds would be sought for a study of blighted areas.

Union Boss Conviction Is Reversed

Court of Appeals Says Subcommittee Exceeded Authority

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals by 2-1 vote today reversed the contempt of Congress conviction of Frank Brewster, Western boss of the Teamsters Union.

The majority took the view that the Senate investigations subcommittee before which Brewster refused to answer questions and produce records, was investigating in a field beyond its authority. Brewster, 60, was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $1,000—the maximum.

The sentence was imposed by U. S. Dist. Judge J. Sirica, who rejected Brewster's contention that he had acted in good faith on the ground he honestly believed the subcommittee lacked jurisdiction to conduct an inquiry into the union's activities.

By a 2-1 vote, the appellate court also reversed the contempt of Congress conviction of Nugent Lapoma, secretary-treasurer of Seattle Local 1470 of the Teamsters.

HST Says Authorized Interview On Unemployment Was All 'Air'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harry Truman now says an interview, which he agreed was authorized at the time it was published eight years ago, didn't happen.

The matter came up as Truman appeared before the House Banking Committee in its study of the nation's economy. Taking the view that the business and employment slump require strong measures fast, Truman called for a tax cut and job-creating spending programs.

Rep. Talle (R-Iowa) produced a copy of the February 1950 interview by Arthur Krock of the New York Times. It quoted Truman, then president, as saying a certain amount of unemployment—say three to five million—is supportable. The article went on to relate that Truman said it is a good thing that job seeking should go on at all times because it is healthy for the economic body.

"May I say that exclusive interview didn't happen? It came out of the air," Truman cut in.

Talle's point was what he pictured as a similarity between the situations now and at the time of the article when unemployment had risen to the highest level in nine years. He wanted to know why Truman takes a different position now.

Talle didn't get a direct answer. Later, Truman told Rep. Widnall (R-NJ) he has always been consistent in his public statements.

"You can garble it all you please," Truman said. "It doesn't hurt me any."

Krock, asked for comment on Truman's remarks, said in a statement that Truman himself proposed the interview and that before publication he submitted the resulting article to Truman through his press secretary, the late Charles G. Ross.

"It was returned to me approved with a few changes in pencil but none in the passage about unemployment," Krock added.

The writer then quoted this exchange from Truman's news conference Feb. 16, 1950:

Vigorous Action Is Urged

Army Missileman Wernher von Braun Says US Must End Soviet Union's Lead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army missileman Wernher von Braun called today for "vigorous action . . . to overcome as quickly as possible the obvious lead which the Russians now enjoy."

Von Braun, head of the scientific team which developed the Jupiter missile and America's first satellite-launching rocket, was the lead-off witness as the House Space Committee opened hearings on what America should do about the vast regions beyond the earth's atmosphere.

Up for committee action is President Eisenhower's proposal to create a civilian agency to handle space matters. The agency would be formed around the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, which now does basic aeronautics research.

Eisenhower's proposal got off to a not-unfriendly start when Rep. McCormack (D - Mass), House majority leader and chairman of the special Space Committee, introduced the Eisenhower bill with the comment that it "is undoubtedly a step in the right direction."

Introducing similar measures were Republican Representatives Arends (Ill), the GOP whip; Keating (NY); and Haskell (Del).

Von Braun, a German-born scientist who worked on Hitler's V2 missiles until the Army brought him here after World War II, did not comment specifically on the Eisenhower plan in his prepared statement.

Von Braun made these points: 1. Although military missiles work is related to that done for satellites and space travel, the exploration of outer space is so vast an undertaking that it cannot be left as a by-product of another program.

"We can meet this challenge only if we appreciate and respect the magnitude of this task and discontinue our unfortunate practice of supporting only such research and development that serves immediate military objectives," he said.

2. The research needs ahead are so great that there is no fear of scientific teams not having enough to do.

Sedalia banks have added a unique feature to the campaign. They procured a supply of $2 bills, and car salesmen were paid with the bills last week, with the idea that the bill would remind the holder to buy more merchandise, put some jobless individual back to work and thus boost the nation's economy.

Thomas C. Hennings, United States Senator from Missouri, has joined in with hundreds of officials, economists and industrialists in commending the Sedalia New Car Dealers Association for its effort toward boosting the national economy. In a telegram to the Sedalia Democrat Tuesday, he said:

"Good luck to Sedalia's auto dealers in their 'Auto Buy' campaigns and their efforts to stimulate retail buying. The goal is a worthy one."

'Auto Buy' Program Considered Success

Bill Solon, chairman of the Retail Merchant's Division of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday that local retailers considered the "You Auto Buy Now" program in the city a worthy undertaking, from both the buying and selling viewpoint.

Buyers may make substantial savings in the purchase of almost all types of merchandise, ranging from cars to carpets, during the gigantic 11-day sale touched off by the city's nine new car dealers last Friday. Solon was unable to give an exact retail sales figure, but he said most retailers have enthusiastically accepted the program and will continue to offer merchandise at a special discount until the sale closes April 21.

The nine new car dealers have earmarked approximately $2-million worth of new and used cars and trucks for sale at special discount. They have knocked about $200,000 off the regular retail price as an added incentive to "Buy Now." Other merchants have marked down their merchandise to make the "You Auto Buy Now" campaign the biggest in Sedalia.

Car lots are open until 9 p. m. nightly for the duration of the sale to give everyone a chance to take advantage of the bargains offered. They have also agreed to open up from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. Sunday. The sale will close Monday evening.

All Is Silence At Inquiry

Three Witnesses Give Fifth Amendment Plea, Are Mum

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators investigating alleged rule of Philadelphia Teamsters Union affairs through violence bumped into Fifth Amendment pleas today by three men accused of having brutally beaten a unionist.

Vincent A. Minisci pointed to the three men in the Senate Rackets Committee hearing room, and said they beat him as an aftermath to a 1954 union election.

The three, summoned to the witness stand and asked whether they had perpetrated the act, read from a slip of paper to invoke the Constitution's protection against self-incrimination.

They identified themselves as Arthur Miller of Pinehill, N.J.; and Joseph (Cinders) Condrowski and Arman Palmeri, both of Philadelphia.

They refused to tell the special investigating committee whether Ray Cohen, a lieutenant of Teamster President James R. Hoffa, had paid them money after the beating, or whether Cohen or others had ordered the assault on Minisci.

Telling his story of the assault, Minisci said: "I was hit from behind first. I was knocked to my hands and knees. It seemed like an eternity to me, but I guess it lasted only a few seconds."

Minisci said he reported the incident to police, but there were no arrests. He said he filed no charges because "I was afraid to."

Condrowski answered a few preliminary questions about how Ray Cohen, victor in the union election promoted him to be union hiring dispatcher in control of job assignments for Teamsters Local 107.

But when committee counsel Robert Kennedy asked whether he had a criminal record the witness invoked the Fifth Amendment.

At the start of the hearing, a witness testified that Cohen, a lieutenant of James R. Hoffa, stacked the meeting at which Cohen seized control of Philadelphia Teamsters Local 107 in 1953.

Raymond J. Kelly, a former official of the local, testified as the leadoff witness in hearings by the corruption and goon squad violence have marked Cohen's administration of the local.

Kelly, a motor court operator, from St. Augustine, Beach, Fla., said Cohen later bragged that "he thought he did a swell job" on the night his followers had installed him as the local's secretary-treasurer and real boss, by shouting down attempts to nominate rival candidates.

The hearing opened with Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) reading a prepared statement that among other things, the evidence would deal with allegations of bribery and extortion.

"Not the least of the charges," McClellan said, "is that favoritism has been extended to certain companies which gives these firms competitive advantage over their rivals. We shall also be interested in determining whether any financial favors have been offered to union officials by management."

Work in Springfield brought a low bid of $250,108 by the L. A. Ball Construction Co. of Springfield.

Bids are to be awarded in the next two weeks after approval by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

Construction is scheduled to start in a month.

Unexpected, Uncomfortable Dip

JET PILOT RESCUED AFTER BAIL OUT—Maj Francis T. Hagerty, 34, of Boston, pilot of a Massachusetts National Guard jet fighter plane (center with light coat), is helped from a small craft to a landing after he bailed out of his disabled craft over the harbor at Boston, Mass. The engine on Hagerty's plane failed as he approached the city and he headed it into the harbor and bailed out. He was treated at a hospital for immersion and shock.

URGES TAX CUT—Former President Harry S. Truman is shown as he appeared before the House Banking Committee in Washington. He urged Congress to fight the recession by giving middle and low income families a $5-billion tax cut and by stepping up defense and public works spending.

No Collection Of Sales Tax On Gasoline

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — The state can't collect sales tax on gasoline even if it is sold to a farmer for non-highway use.

The Missouri Supreme Court ruled yesterday that the Legislature in enacting the sales tax law in 1934 clearly intended to prevent double taxation by exempting motor fuel.

The test case by Albert Hofman and Son, farmers, and Mitchell Petroleum Co. was directed against the state director of revenue, state collector and the attorney general.

In another decision the high court told the State Public Service Commission to take another look at its ruling 18 months ago involving two Rock Island passenger trains between Kansas City and Eldon.

The railroad wanted to abandon trains 23 and 24 because it was losing more than $50,000 a year on them. The PSC refused to allow them to be discontinued on grounds public transportation would suffer and chick hatcheries in the Windsor area would be without adequate service.

The Supreme Court said the commission's decision was unreasonable and arbitrary and should be re-examined.

The court also told the state it could not collect some $1,500 in unpaid taxes from Lawrence Ludwig, former Carroll County collector, under the penal statute the state sought to use.

The court said the loss actually was due to an oversight by the Carroll County Court and the State Revenue Department and there was no intent to defraud.

The ruling suggested the state might try some other kind of lawsuit in its attempt to get the money.

The court upheld a Stoddard County Circuit Court award of $30,000 damages to Richard G. Johnson from Flex-O-Lite Manufacturing Corp., William Hartle and Walter Lee Lynn.

Blue Shield Extension Is Announced

ST. LOUIS — Dr. Walter S. Sewell, of Springfield, Mo., announced Blue Shield medical-surgical protection was extended today to persons more than 60 years old.

He is president of the Missouri Medical Service, which operates the program.

The new provision applies to persons who were denied membership because they did not belong to a group plan. Dr. Sewell said non-group membership is now available to anyone at any age who can complete a satisfactory medical statement.

He made the announcement at the annual convention of the Missouri State Medical Assn. He is retiring president of the association.

The MSMA's 100th convention is ending today. About 1,000 doctors attended.

Dues for the Blue Shield participants over 65 will be $2.65 a month for individuals and $4.30 for families. Those below 65 will still pay $1.75 and $4.10 monthly as in the past.

The director of the government's new medical care program for dependents of military personnel, Maj. Gen. Paul I. Robinson, said the program is not a step toward socialized medicine.

He labeled the program a success and said it is designed to take care of the needs of dependents scattered around the world who do not have military facilities available and who otherwise would either have to do without proper medical care or pay for it themselves.

A report given at the convention

Haitian Official Departs After Slaying Diplomat

WASHINGTON — An official of the Haitian Embassy, accompanied by a military attaché, left for home early today in the wake of what police called the admitted slaying of a fellow diplomat.

Andre Toussaint, 39, first secretary of the embassy, left Washington by plane via Miami.

The Haitian Embassy declined to say whether Toussaint's abrupt departure had been ordered by his government. An embassy statement earlier said orders for his recall reached the embassy yesterday morning shortly before the fatal shooting of Samuel Devieux, 52, minister counselor for the embassy.

Police said they were told Toussaint blamed Devieux for the recall.

Toussaint came to Washington just a few weeks ago and was married to an American woman last Saturday.

The embassy said that after being notified of the recall, Toussaint went home, talked with his wife, returned to the embassy, took a pistol from his desk and shot Devieux.

Under diplomatic regulations, Toussaint could not be arrested in this country and tried for the slaying unless his country waived diplomatic immunity.

Under diplomatic regulations, said advances in treatment of intestinal obstructions have cut the mortality rate of that ailment from 50 to 60 per cent at the turn of the century to less than 10 per cent now.

Each balloon has a story on one side and a colorful drawing on the other. Stephen's balloon tells the story of Samson and Delilah, while Tod's deals with Jonah and the whale.

Senators Claim

Administration Tightens Up Lines Against All Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON — Two Senate Democrats said today the Eisenhower administration appears to be tightening its lines against tax cuts and further spending despite continuing unemployment.

Senators Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Monroney (D-Okla.) criticized in separate interviews what they called increased administration resistance against efforts of Congress to pass legislation aimed at creating jobs.

On the other hand, Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said more "crackpot schemes" for federal spending had been submitted to this session of Congress than any other he could remember.

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said in a radio broadcast he is opposed to all this "pent-up, frantic effort to spend ourselves into prosperity," adding that it can't be done.

The differing views were expressed as the Federal Reserve Board reported the seventh successive monthly drop in its index of industrial production. The figure for March, down two points to 128, was the lowest since the 1954 recession. A three-point drop was recorded for February.

The index measures the volume of output of the nation's factories and mines, with 100 indicating the 1947-49 average. At 128 per cent of that figure, the March index compared with 145 a year ago and a peak of 147 in December 1956. The 1954 low was 123 in August of that year.

Along with decreased production, the board reported March drops in employment, incomes and retail sales and an increase in unemployment.

Among other things, the report said construction activity remained at a high level while private housing starts, adjusted for seasonal variations, remained about the same as February for an annual rate of less than 900,000 units.

Bridges said he believes the tide is against a tax cut such as former President Truman proposed in an appearance before the House Banking Committee.

However, Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) renewed his appeal for a tax reduction. Douglas said the administration is "playing Russian roulette with the security of the American people" by delaying action in this field.

Humphrey said that apparently President Eisenhower is "continuing to underestimate the extent of the business recession just as the administration underestimated the effect of the Russian Sputniks."

Monroney noted that administration witnesses had opposed flatly a $12-million-dollar federal aid bill for airport improvements which he is sponsoring and said he believes the White House is taking the wrong tack.

"What the country needs is confidence," he said. "We ought to pass these antirecession bills and have them ready to use if conditions worsen. If employment picks up, the President can order some of the money impounded. He has done it in the past."

In a separate report, the Labor Department said nonfarm housing starts during March showed a seasonal increase to 79,000 compared with February's low figure of 65,000. The March total was 9 per cent under that of a year ago.

The report said adverse weather conditions in parts of February and March delayed the start of construction in many parts of the country, but privately owned dwelling units started during the first three months totaled 199,300 compared with 202,500 in the first quarter of 1957.

Sharp increases during March in applications for FHA and Va loan insurance and guarantees, the report said, indicate an increase in home building during future months.

Actress Nina Bara Wins Divorce Suit

LOS ANGELES — Testimony that her husband spent too much time in another woman's apartment won a divorce for TV actress Nina Bara.

Miss Bara, 34, told the court that pianist Dick Winslow Johnson, 43, "wanted to be married but acted like a single man." She charged cruelty.

Superior Judge Burnett Wolfson asked, regarding Johnson's visits to the other woman's apartment: "Are you sure he wasn't practicing the piano at her place?" "This woman didn't have a piano," Nina replied.

Republicans Attack HST Economy Plan

WASHINGTON — Republicans today jumped on Harry S. Truman's economic prescriptions as "the same old wheeze," and contended that if Congress followed his advice the country would go broke.

But the former President's two hours of testimony yesterday before the House Banking Committee drew grudging admiration from his Republican critics, even if they disagreed with his economics.

"He made his pitch and did it well — I was glad to watch the show," said Rep. Seely Brown (R-Conn.).

Rep. Mumma (R-Pa.) said Truman was entertaining, but called his testimony "a political gimmick to open the congressional campaign for 1958."

But Chairman Spence (D-Ky.) said he was eminently satisfied with Truman as his opening committee witness for a scheduled five-week hearing on the economic situation and what to do about it.

"He rendered a fine service," Spence said. "His importance in the nation entitled him to be heard."

In reply to GOP hints that Truman was called to provide the committee with political propaganda, Spence declared there was "no frameup."

Spence disclosed that Truman had written saying he was interested in the hearings, and that he was invited. "Ex-presidents are entitled to come if they want to," Spence said.

As a self-styled "retired Missouri farmer," Truman proposed an antirecession prescription compounded chiefly of an immediate five-billion-dollar low-income tax cut, closing of tax loopholes and a massive five-year increase in federal spending for defense and public works.

Along with these he recommended an increase in Social Security benefits, broadened and expanded unemployment compensation benefits, lowering interest on government borrowings, aid for small business, and federal loans for local public works and distressed communities.

"You can't sit and let the country go to hell," he observed at one point.

Then, in a wisecracking question and answer period, he disposed of about everything in the economic picture from money ("It's Greek to me") to what's wrong with the auto industry ("Too many cars priced too high").

Rep. McDonough (R-Calif.) said he would go a step further than Truman "and say the entire subject of economics is Greek to him."

McDonough said Truman's program of federal spending could add close to 200 billion dollars to the federal budget over the next 10 years, while his tax program would cut 50 billion dollars from revenues in the same period.

"I am sure even a freshman economics student could figure out the consequences of such a program," McDonough said.

Truman said tax readjustments and closing of loopholes would

Committee to Probe Goon Squad Tactics

WASHINGTON — The Senate Rackets Committee lined up 40 witnesses today for the start of hearings on alleged goon squad violence and corrupt practices in Philadelphia Teamsters unions.

Robert F. Kennedy, the committee counsel, said the committee had decided to go ahead despite the death last week of one key witness and the continued absence of another.

Kennedy said Samuel Kirsch of Philadelphia, formerly associated with a magazine known as the Pennsylvania Federationist, died last week.

Kennedy said Benjamin Lapensohn, a onetime Teamster official and former head of the magazine, went off on a tour abroad more than a year ago when the committee sought to subpoena him.

Kennedy and Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) said the inquiry would center largely on the affairs of Lapensohn and Ray Cohen, boss of Philadelphia Teamsters Local 107. But they said it also would deal with other Teamster locals and some other unions, and uncover some corrupt dealings by certain employers whom they declined to name in advance.

Delays Defense Talks On Reorganization

WASHINGTON — At the request of Secretary of Defense McElroy, the House Armed Services Committee is postponing for a week hearings on President Eisenhower's controversial proposal for defense reorganization.

Committee Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) said McElroy wants to be the first witness but will be in Paris this week for a meeting of North Atlantic Pact defense ministers.

help offset any loss of revenue from his proposals.

Rep. McVey (R-Ill.) said Truman "talked about spending a lot of money, but he didn't seem to know much about the inflationary erosion of the dollar that would result."

DAR Congress Stresses Danger Of Propaganda

WASHINGTON — The danger of Communist propaganda, infiltration and subversion was stressed by speakers at the opening of the 67th Continental Congress of the DAR last night.

With orchids, evening dresses and colorful state flags flying, some 3,000 DAR delegates convened for the annual pilgrimage in Constitution Hall.

Rep. Gordon H. Scherer (R-Ohio), a member of the House committee on un-American activities, said the nation now faces what he called a death grip struggle with communism—"an enemy whom we can ignore, appease, negotiate with—only at expense of our own survival."

Also citing the threat of Communism, DAR president Mrs. Frederic A. Groves of Cape Girardeau, Mo., said "the remaining half of this country must see communism wiped out as a hoax, a false promise, an atheistic philosophy."

She said the fruits of U. S. freedom — Christian faith and principles, constitutional government, free economy and freedom of the individual are our answers to the communist way of life.

Senate minority leader William F. Knowland (R-Calif.), a key speaker at last year's opening session, turned up unexpectedly on the platform. Mrs. Groves introduced him as a member of the DAR advisory committee and said Knowland had flown back from California to be there.

Indians, A's Open Season In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians and Kansas City Athletics, picked by the experts to finish in the second division again this year, meet in their season's opener today at Municipal Stadium before a crowd that is expected to reach 35,000 by game time at 3 p.m. (CST).

Herb Score, the Tribe's ace left hander, will make his first American League start since last May 7, when he was sidelined by an eye injury. He had a 2-1 record when forced out of action after being hit in the eye by a line drive.

Manager Harry Craft of the Athletics named Ned Garver, a veteran right hander, as his starter. Garver won six games and lost 13 last season. Three of his victories were over the Indians.

Bobby Bragan will be making his debut as manager of the Indians. He replaced Kerby Farrell at the conclusion of the 1957 season. Today's game will be Craft's first season opener at the helm of the Athletics. He took over from Lou Boudreau in the middle of last season.

The Indians finished sixth last season. The Kansas City lineup will include three players new to the Athletics this year. They are Bill Tuttle, who was with Detroit last year; Mike Baxes, up from Buffalo, and Harry Chiti, who was at Denver in 1957.

Craft says the Athletics, seventh place finishers last season, are an improved club. "We're better defensively and that'll help our pitching," he said yesterday shortly after the team arrived here.

West All-Stars Grab Opening Cage Tilt

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—The West All-Stars grabbed the opening game of the National Basketball tour last night 108 to 105 from the East All-Stars as Clyde Lovellette, who used to thrill Nebraska fans as a Kansas University star, led the winners.

Lovellette, a member of the Cincinnati club, hit eight field goals and one of two free throws for 17 points and led the West in rebounding. But he yielded scoring honors to teammate Bob Pettit, ace of the St. Louis Hawks, who had nine fielders and four free throws.

The next game will be at Salt Lake City.

Prospects Good For Baseball To Open in Havana

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The International League simmered down today to the calm said to prevail in Havana, and prospects looked certain for its baseball season to open in the Cuban capital on schedule tomorrow.

The Buffalo Bisons agreed to play at Havana after a brief rebellion, pegged on concern for the team's safety in a country stirred up by revolutionaries.

"The situation is now cleared up," League President Frank J. Shaughnessy said last night. "Every club in the league is ready to go, and we're looking for a very big season."

Shaughnessy plans to fly to Havana with the Bisons tomorrow to attend all four of their games with the Havana Sugar Kings. Earl T. Smith of Palm Beach, U.S. ambassador to Cuba, will throw out the first ball at Havana's Gran Stadium.

A telephone call from Smith to Bisons President John C. Stiglmeyer, and agreement by the league to assume responsibility for player safety, helped induce the Buffalo club to reverse its stand that it wouldn't make the Havana trip.

Bison player representatives said at Pompano Beach training grounds, "We want it known that should any incident happen to any of our players on or off the field at Havana, our families will seek damages from the International League."

Smith assured the Biffs that Havana had returned to relative quiet and said, "If children play in the streets, why can't men play in the stadium?"

League Reaches Coast to Coast For First Time

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Major league baseball reaches from coast to coast for the first time today with the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers meeting in the Pacific inaugural.

Transplanted from New York and Brooklyn, the Giants and Dodgers renew their long rivalry along a different coastline.

Manager Bill Rigney named Puerto Rican right hander Ruben Gomez (15-13 in 1957) to start against the Dodgers who nominated Don Drysdale (17-9).

A crowd estimated at 200,000 lined the streets yesterday to welcome Willie Mays and Co., and later a packed banquet audience heard Rigney say, "they pick us to finish sixth but we haven't that in mind. This team is ready to go."

A capacity throng of 23,400, or perhaps a few more, has been assured since last Dec. 1 when the opening game became a sell-out. The clamor for tickets continued and Peter Hoffman, the man in charge of the duets, estimates 60,000 or more will watch the opening series, which ends here Thursday. The two clubs switch immediately to Los Angeles for games Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Sedalia Youths Try Out For Little League

The season's first tryouts and physical examinations are on tap this week for more than 600 Sedalia youths who will participate in the Little League baseball program this year.

With "Play Ball" time only six weeks away, Little League managers, coaches and officials are facing the king sized task of getting their extensive program ready. The number of boys whose ages range from eight to 12 taking part in 1958 play is expected to break all previous records — indicating a banner season for Sedalia's excellent Little League organization.

The first tryouts will be held at 4:30 p.m. Friday for all eight and nine year olds. Ten, 11 and 12 year-old players will report for tryouts at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. Tryouts will be held at the Little League Stadium. Players are asked to bring their own gloves.

Physical examinations will be given Saturday at the Sedalia Armory, beginning at 9 a.m. Physicals were originally slated last Saturday, but several doctors were unable to be present at that time because of a state convention.

Exams will be given at the same time for prospective Babe Ruth League players.

Cardinals Meet Chicago Cubs At Busch Stadium

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Cardinals who have an undistinguished record in opening day games and the Chicago Cubs who often start well, play in the opening game at Busch Stadium tonight.

Left-hander Vinegar Bend Mizell will be starting pitcher for the Red Birds and right-hander Jim Brosnan will start for the Cubs.

The Cardinals' opening day record is 23 wins, 34 losses and one tie. The Cubs have the best first day record in the National League with 35 victories, 22 defeats and one tie.

Cardinal officials expect a crowd of 20,000 at the opener which starts at 8 p.m.

Mizell won eight and lost 10 games last year.

Brosnan had a 5-5 record in 1957.

Both clubs called off workouts yesterday because of rain.

The teams meet here again Thursday after an open date Wednesday.

A pair of right-handed pitchers, Lynn Lovenguth and Lloyd Merritt, were dropped from the Cardinal roster yesterday, bringing it to the legal limit of 28.

First League Games Get Full Opening Treatment

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

The Washington Senators lead the American League, the Dodgers and Giants meet in San Francisco and the world championship pennant flies from an old telephone pole in Milwaukee.

It sounds as though they've gone and made a travesty of the game. But that's the way things went today for the full-treatment opening of the 1958 major league baseball season.

The Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants take the field before a capacity crowd of 23,400 at Seal's Stadium for the played in California.

A total crowd of about 227,400 was estimated for today's eight games. Commissioner Ford Frick and NL President Warren Giles were sitting in on the ceremonies at San Francisco.

The NL champion Milwaukee Braves opened at home against the Pittsburgh Pirates, with Philadelphia at Cincinnati and the Chicago Cubs at St. Louis for a night game with the Cardinals.

In the American League, the defending champion New York Yankees were at Boston against the Red Sox, who again will be without Ted Williams, just as they were in yesterday's 5-2 defeat in the traditional early opener at Washington.

AL President Will Harridge was at Chicago for the White Sox's opener against the Detroit Tigers. Kansas City was at Cleveland and Washington at Baltimore in the other AL games.

While old hands drew the pitching assignments, Don Drysdale (17-9 in '57) for the Dodgers and Ruben Gomez (15-13) for the Giants, there were a few new faces in San Francisco. The Giants had three rookies in the lineup, Jim Davenport (3b), Willie Kirkland (rf) and Orlando Cepeda (1b); the Dodgers one, Dick Gray (3b).

Dodger veteran Duke Snider shifted from center to left in a swap with Gino Cimoli that favored the Duke's slow-healing knee.

Southpaw Warren Spahn, the NL lone 20-game winner (21-11) last season, started for the Braves in a try for his 225th major league victory. Right-hander Bob Friend (14-18) was the Pirates' choice. Ted Kluszewski, late of Cincinnati, was Pittsburgh's first baseman, while rookie Harry Hanebrink replaced the injured Wes Covington in the outfield for the Braves, who were forced to use the telephone pole when their custom-made pennant pole was late in arriving.

A nonerookie lineup will take the field for the Cards, with Al Dark still a shortstop, Ken Boyer back at third and Bobby Gene Smith in center. Left-hander Wilmer Mizell (8-10) will face right-hander Jim Brosnan (5-4) of the Cubs, who had rookie Tony Taylor at second and ex-Giant Bobby Thomson in center.

Vada Pinson, the most promising rookie in the Florida camps, opened in right for Cincinnati against the Phils and veteran right-hander Robin Roberts (10-22). The Redlegs picked right-hander Brooks Lawrence against a Phillie lineup that had ex-Red Wally Post in right field. Second baseman Gran Hamner shifted to third for the Phils, replacing veteran Willie Jones, whose 3-year-old son died yesterday.

The Yankees, with shortstop Tony Kubek and utilityman Harry Simpson on the injured list, decided on right-hander Don Larsen (10-4) at Boston against Willard Nixon (12-13). Gene Stephens again played left for the Red Sox as Williams fought off the effects of food poisoning.

The biggest AL crowd, 35,000, was expected at Cleveland, where young Herb Score (2-1) started his comeback from last season's eye injury against Kansas City and veteran right-hander Ned Garver (6-13). New manager Bobby Bragan had Minnie Minoza, Larry Doby, Fred Hatfield, Mickey Vernon (all acquired by new general manager Frank Lane) and rookie second baseman Billy Moran in the lineup.

Detroit's Jim Bunning (20-8) and Chicago's Billy Pierce (20-12), the AL's only 20-game winners last season, started at Comiskey Park. The injured Al Smith, a former Injun, was a possible starter in the outfield for the Sox, who also had ex-Orioles Tito Francona and Billy Goodman in the lineup. Detroit's new face was Billy Martin, the ex-Yankee by way of Kansas City, who is making a shift from second to short.

The Orioles picked Connie Johnson (14-11) to face the Senators and Camilo Pascual (8-17) and could have three rookies in the lineup—shortstop Ronnie Hansen, outfielder Lennie Green and first baseman Jim Marshall.

No New York Rangers hockey team has finished as high as second in the National Hockey League since the championship club of 1941-42.

Basilio Will Get Short Purse In Robinson Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—If Carmen Basilio wants a third title fight with Sugar Ray Robinson, he'll have to take the short end of the purse again.

Robinson, reigning over the middleweight division for the fifth time, made that plain shortly after he had masterminded sparmate Otis Woodward to an upset 10-round decision over Eddie Andrews, a 3-1 choice, at St. Nicholas Arena last night.

Rocky Graziano handled Andrews, of Lowell, Mass.

Only 10 days ago Basilio had said he would have to split equally with Robinson if they fought again.

On the question of whether he intended to fight again, Robinson said, "When you got something somebody wants, you're in business. My business is boxing."

On Basilio's demand for an even share—if he decides to fight again—Sugar Ray smiled and said: "Doesn't Basilio know the law says the champion has to get more. I know Carmen doesn't want to break the law."

Robinson collected 45 per cent and Basilio 20 per cent when Carmen won the first fight Sept. 23, 1957. They each received 30 per cent for the return, when Basilio had his left eye shut, in Chicago last March 25.

Pacific Coast League Opens Its 55th Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pacific Coast League opens its 55th year today with two afternoon and four night games. One of the night games will be in the home park of one of the three new members of the league—Phoenix, Ariz., to which has also been moved league headquarters.

The San Diego Padres will meet the Phoenix Giants before an expected capacity crowd of 6,500.

Other games on today's schedule will be played in established PCL cities. Spokane, another of the new members of the league will play a day-night doubleheader in Seattle.

Jackie Jensen socked Ramos for a two-run homer in the third. A spectacular diving catch by Eddie Yost of Jensen's bases-full liner in the first saved Ramos two or three runs. Otherwise Pedro controlled the contest.

Jim Lemon slammed a solo homer for the Senators, but inept fielding cost Frank Sullivan the game. The 6-foot-7 Boston right-hander yielded all five Washington runs in the six innings he pitched, but the last three were unearned. They came in the sixth, when errors by shortstop Don Buddin, his first of two, and Gene Stephens, Williams' sub, fitted in with a walk and singles by Ramos and Yost.

BY WILSON SCRUGGS

During School Visit

Businessmen Discover Students Desire A Variety of Professions

The first school visited by business and professional people on Education-Business Day April 10 before they went on to the schools on the east side of town, was Broadway.

Miss Edyth Couey, principal, took them through, and one thing that was noted that was different was the teaching of penmanship. Now a ruler is used in instructing which shows the right slant of the letters and the wrong slant.

One of the things the group enjoyed at this school was hearing the school orchestra play. The orchestra was getting ready for the all-school orchestra program to be presented this week. Each school practices the same pieces and then they have one practice together before they present the program.

In Broadway there are two student teachers from Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg.

The art work was all over the school and in one room depicted the various things in the month of April which the children had drawn from a poem about April.

The next stop was at St. Patrick's School. As they entered, the children all stood and said, "Good morning", to the guests. Mrs. Al Miles took the group through the school. She asked each of the guests to introduce himself and tell what kind of business he is in. There was a variety of businesses then she asked the children to tell what they would like to be, thinking they would want to be in a business or profession mentioned.

Only one little boy responded, and when she asked him what he would like to be, he didn't hesitate. "A bricklayer," he said.

There were no bricklayers in the group, but the Sister who taught thought it wasn't a bad choice — bricklayers make good money.

The children at this school read for them and the group found the method of teaching reading now very fascinating.

The group then went to Jefferson School where John Vogel, principal, took them through.

Here they found names with gold stars, blue stars and red stars, and when someone asked about them, they were told this is for spelling. The youngsters are very proud of the stars and there is real competition among some of them who try to out-do each other in getting stars. This was one thing that most of them remembered from their own school days.

They reached this school just at lunchtime and saw the children eating in the cafeteria. The food looked good.

The library was another place they visited where the children can take out books for a small sum. Another thing they do at this school is sell penny candy, the money going into the activity fund.

The rooms all looked neat and clean; some had new desks and some didn't. The playground is a nice one in good weather. This school has a very good lighting system.

At Washington School, too, they arrived at lunch time and saw the children in this cafeteria which is a large one. They were taken through the building by Miss Bessie Perkins, principal. The children sang for them.

Here, as at all the schools, they noticed the art work. In one room they were particularly interested in the scrapbooks on Missouri, which were very beautiful. There were all types of art work, things like butterflies made of paper and pipe cleaners. There were birds, too, and various other things that were very attractive.

In one room at Washington the group was interested in the fact that they devoted some time to current events which they felt was very good.

A bell sounded and someone questioned Miss Perkins. "That," she explained, "is the tardy bell."

"Well," commented one of the men, "it doesn't sound like the tardy bell did when I went to school. Somebody got out with a great big bell and really rang it." Today's tardy bell is electric.

In another room where some of the drawings were excellent, Miss Perkins said people think that these youngsters will make fine architects, and the children usually do, too, but it really isn't necessarily true. She went on to say that a boy from that school who had made one of the best architects anywhere couldn't draw at all when he was in school.

At Whittier School the group was taken through by John Thomas, principal. Here they found welcome signs over the building. The children sang for them, too, which they enjoyed.

They teach all kinds of subjects that they didn't teach when most of the group went to school, things like social science. "I don't even know what social science is," one of them commented.

"Where are the switches?" a man asked one of the principals. "You mean the light switches?" she asked.

"So," replied the man, "the switches like they used to use on the kids when I went to school."

The last school visited was Smith-Cotton, where they were taken through by Forrest Drake, principal of Smith-Cotton, and Pinkney Miller, assistant principal.

Ed Kehde, Jr., a member of the school board and director of the education-recreation division of the Chamber of Commerce, paid tribute to Dr. Heber U. Hunt, who is retiring and told of the progress that had been made in the schools under his years of administration. He told the group that Sedalia has a wonderful school system.

James L. Van Wagner, Jr., chairman of E-B Day from the Chamber of Commerce, was introduced.

Among the places visited by the group were the shops, the garage, the libraries and the various rooms where the different teaching methods were explained. They were shown the gymnasium and were told of the great need of a physical education building because there is not enough room to give proper training. The girls in particular have little space for physical education.

The total enrollment in the public school is 3,769 and in 1943 the enrollment was 2,956. The total enrollment at the various schools follows: Broadway, 334; Horace Mann, 572; Hubbard, 333; Jefferson, 147; Mark Twain, 402; Washington, 465; Whittier, 316 and Smith-Cotton, 1,197.

The average number of students per room is between 30 and 35. Several teachers, however, have up to 42 pupils.

The report on the schools on the east side was made by Mrs. Ike L. Warren.

Gov. Vetoes White Supremacy Measure

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. J. P. Coleman last night vetoed a bill designed to maintain white supremacy over the ballot box in Mississippi. He said it was unconstitutional.

The measure would have put voter registration in the hands of a court-appointed registrar. Coleman also vetoed the bill made the registrar an inferior court.

Provisions of the bill, vetoed only three hours before a midnight deadline held that the appointive registrar would hold court only a few days a month and would have the advice of a lawyer and the protection of the sheriff. Registration is now handled by the elective circuit clerk, whose offices are open during regular business hours.

The governor said the elective circuit clerks are not versed in the law and therefore are not prepared to withstand intimidation by federal officers.

Doolittle Death Termed Suicide

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Maj. James H. Doolittle Jr., whose famous father led the nation's first air strike on Japan's mainland in World War II, committed suicide, an investigation report shows.

"I wrote on the death certificate that it was suicide," said Justice of the Peace J. H. Watson. "It was not homicide or accidental."

Doolittle, 38, was found dead last Wednesday in his office at Bergstrom Air Force Base near here. He had been shot in the right temple with a .38 caliber revolver found on the floor by his body.

Lt. Gen. Doolittle returned here from a government mission in Puerto Rico but like others in the major's family said he knew no reason for his death.

Doolittle was commander of the 524th Fighter-Bomber Squadron and piloted a supersonic jet F101A Voodoo.

Memorial services were held at the base chapel last Friday and his body will be cremated in San Antonio, Tex. Final burial services will be held later in St. Louis, the home of the widow.

Watson said his verdict was based on his own investigation and that of Air Force authorities.
